Promotion Tests for Officers Discussed

By HON. JOHN M. MORIN,
Chairman, House Military Committee.
H. R. 8150, to provide for a system of examination for promotion of officers of the Army, and for other purposes, is the fourth of the 14 separate bills introduced by me as Chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs dealing with promotion and retirement in the Army. This measure is the first, however, in the number discussed, dealing directly with promotion. Therefore a general resume of the principles to be observed in attempting to arrive at a solution will be interesting.

Quotes Joint Board.

In reading the report of the Coordinating Board for Consideration of Military-Naval Promotion Systems, composed of Rear Admiral E. H. Campbell, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, Brigadier General Ben H. Fuller, United States Marine Corps, and Brigadier General Campbell King, United States Army, I find a statement of basic principles underlying promotion and retirement of commissioned personnel applicable to the three Services that is well worth while quoting.

These basic principles are:

- (1) A military service, whether Army, Navy, or Marine Corps, must have a corps of commissioned officers, adequate in number, capable in the performance of their duties, and reasonable in cost to the Government.
- (2) A promotion system must envisage and be adopted to augmentation of our peace-time forces in war and to maximum military efficiency.
- (3) A high quality of officer material (Please turn to Page 447.)

Guard Increase Planned

PLANS of the War Department and Militia Bureau to bring the National Guard of the United States up to an estimated strength of 190,000 by 1930 by a series of progressive increases in the yearly appropriations were described by Major General Creed C. Hammond, Chief of the Militia Bureau, during the hearings on the War Department Appropriations Bill.

Under questioning by Representative Collins, of Mississippi, General Hammond contended that this was not an "extraordinary" increase in size but was merely a step toward bringing the National Guard Units up to the strength and efficiency authorized by law. He stated that it was hoped to bring the total strength up to about 210,521 in actual, ultimate numbers. Extracts from the discussion between General Hammond and Representative Collins are as follows:

Mr. Collins: I want to know what is the reason for this extraordinary expansion of the National Guard?

General Hammond: It is not extraordinary.

Mr. Collins: When the regular establishment is not permitted, to expand at all?

General Hammond: I have no control over the regular establishment, but this is not extraordinary expansion of the National Guard. I would say it is a very minor one, a few units to fill some existing organizations. It is just a matter of national defense, increasing the efficiency and strength of the guard, but the cost, as compared with the value of it, is very, very small.

Mr. Collins: With this figure of 188,000 men practically all of the units of the National Guard will be of normal size, will they not?

General Hammond: No. We have some regiments that lack two or three units to complete them. We have right now some regiments of Infantry that have no medical detachment, and they have to go to camp without any medical officer, unless they can get one from some other outfit. Then there are some of them that have no key units that they really need. This is just to round out a balanced organization, so if we were called out in case of an emergency we would have a properly balanced organization.

Fight on Army Strength Starts

WITH the reporting of the Army Appropriations Bill this week carrying funds for an average enlisted strength of 118,750 men, including the Air Corps increment, the fight to secure funds for the additional aviation personnel required under the Five-year Program without cutting any other arms, was begun in Congress.

Amendments to the War Bill will be offered upon the floor of the House of Representatives providing for sufficient increase in the amounts under the item "Pay of the Army" to insure that the additional enlisted strength for the Air Corps, as provided in the Five Year Program, will not have to be absorbed from the average strength of other branches of the Service. If these amendments are defeated in the House, indications are that similar amendments will be offered when the Bill reaches the Senate for consideration.

At the present time it is not definitely known whether such amendments will be strongly opposed or not, although there is every indication that their proponents are prepared to make every possible effort to have them incorporated in the Bill.

Committee Followed Budget.

In reporting the Bill, the House Committee on Appropriations, has followed very closely the recommendations of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, especially as regards the provision for the amount entitled "Pay of the Army" which is still barely sufficient to maintain an average enlisted strength of 118,750 without taking into consideration the required increase for the Air Corps under the provisions of the Five Year Program.

This increase in the strength of the Air Corps amounts to 6,240 in equal increments over a period of five years, or 1,248 men per year, and under the law is supposed to be in addition to the allotment allowed other branches of the Service.

The Bureau of the Budget has consistently disapproved estimates intended to make this increase possible with the result that the War Department has been forced to work out plans for absorbing these additional men for the Air Corps from other branches of the Army.

During the Committee's investigation as to the probable effect, upon the Army as a whole, of absorbing this enlisted increase for the Air Corps in the other Barbour questioned Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis as follows:

Mr. Barbour: "Would the reductions in the strength of the Army from year to year caused by absorbing these Air Corps increments over a period of five years reduce the strength of the Army to a point where you would consider it was not a safe nucleus to build around in case of an emergency?" (Please turn to Page 451.)

Dress Uniform Plans Disclosed

RECOMMENDATIONS for a return of the United States Army to a dress uniform will be included in the War Department Estimates for the Fiscal Year 1930.

This information was revealed by Major General Charles P. Summerall, U. S. A., Chief of Staff, during the hearings on the 1929 Estimates before the House Committee on Appropriations.

War-Time Stocks Exhausted.

Pointing out that uniforms now being issued to all components of the Army from surplus war-time stocks could not continue after the fiscal year 1929, by reason of the exhaustion of this source of supply, General Summerall stated to the members of the Committee that it would be imperative upon the War Department to request funds for uniform requirements in the 1930 Estimates. In answer to questions by various members of the Committee the Chief of Staff stated that the question of restoring the Army to its pre-war uniform, or one similar, was being very seriously discussed and that the War Department expected to advocate three uniforms for issuance to the enlisted personnel; the service uniform, the dress uniform and the full-dress uniform. One of each to be issued to every enlisted man during his term of service.

Representative Barbour, of California, Chairman of the Subcommittee on War Department Appropriations, interrogated General Summerall at length upon the subject as did also Representative Collins, of Mississippi, and the following extracts from the hearings explain the Army's uniform situation:

Mr. Barbour: About how much longer will the war-time stock last that is being issued at this time?

General Summerall: This will probably be our last year. In 1930 we expect to be compelled to resort to an appropriation.

Mr. Barbour: To ask Congress for an appropriation?

General Summerall: Yes, sir.

Mr. Barbour: Is it contemplated at that time to take up the question of a different type or style or color of uniform?

General Summerall: Yes, sir. The subject of restoring the Army to its uniform is very seriously considered.

Mr. Collins: What do you mean by "restoring" it to its uniform?

General Summerall: In all our history up to the last war the Army had a dress uniform and a full-dress uniform, and for about 25 years preceding the last war it also had a service uniform. Now, since the last war we have only a service uniform from war-time stocks, except the one made-to-measure uniform that has been issued during the last two years. It is very desirable to restore to the Army the uniform which it always had, and which the Marine Corps has, and which, as far as I know, the armies of the world have.

Three Uniforms Discussed.

Mr. Collins: Three uniforms?

General Summerall: Yes; the service uniform, the dress uniform, and the full-dress uniform.

Mr. Barbour: Enlisted men?

General Summerall: Yes, sir. The officers provide their own uniforms.

Mr. Collins: You are talking about uniforms for enlisted men?

General Summerall: Yes, sir.

Mr. Taber: Officers have only one type of uniform?

General Summerall: Both officers and enlisted men.

Mr. Barbour: It is going back to the blue for dress uniform.

General Summerall: Blue or some other shade or combination of shades for dress and full dress.

Mr. Barbour: I think a great improvement could be made in the present uniforms for enlisted men in the Army.

General Summerall: We are at great disadvantage when we appear before the public with the representatives of other armed forces and with foreign troops, as is so often the case. There is no doubt that it affects the morale of our men, and it affects the attitude of our people toward our soldiers.

Mr. Barbour: Then we can expect that matter to come before the Committee in the 1930 bill?

General Summerall: Yes, sir.

Navy Program Gains Support in Congress

AS hearings by the House Naval Affairs Committee near conclusion, expected next week, the Navy's five-year building program appears to be gaining wide support as the reasons for the Geneva failure and Navy requirements are outlined to Congress.

Declaring that the day must come when Great Britain must realize that a new industrial nation has come upon the horizon demanding equality upon the seas, Rear. Adm. H. P. Jones, U. S. N., in a statement before the House Committee on Naval Affairs, yesterday, pointed out that Lloyds have it within their power to drive American shipping off the seas. He recommended American classification for American ships and insurance partly guaranteed by the Government as a possible remedy for the situation in which the American shipping finds itself today.

Wilbur to Appear Monday.

Secretary Wilbur was slated to take the witness stand Monday when the Committee resumed hearings. His statement, presented when the hearings began, was to be further analyzed and some committeemen desired to interrogate the Secretary by direct or cross-examination.

The feature development of the past week, as seen by Committee observers, was furnished by Admiral Jones when, in answer to a question by Rep. McClintic, of Oklahoma, he put the Navy building issue in a nutshell.

Rep. McClintic asked:

"Do you see any situation with re- (Please turn to Page 451.)"

Fund Limit Stirs Reserves

STIRRED by the limited funds allowed for Reserve activities in the War Department Appropriations bill, as reported by the House Committee on Appropriations, prominent reserve officers are doing all in their power to correct the erroneous impressions gained by members of the Committee from testimony rendered in connection with the hearings on the bill, tending to show that the estimates, as submitted, would more than care for the necessary activities of the Reserve Corps.

The particular item which is considered as "grossly unfair" by members of the Reserve is that of $1,322,401 for the active duty training, for one year, of 110 officers of the Air Corps Reserve.

Brigadier General Roy Hoffman, Res., president of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, in an interview with a representative of the Army and Navy Journal, scored the methods of allotting funds to the Reserves. He referred to his statement before the House Appropriations Committee, declaring:

"Relative to the Air Corps estimates, I desire to call to your attention the fact that the Air Corps is in no wise, or by any stretch of the imagination, a reserve training project, but that, on the contrary, the Air Corps was created by H. R. 10827, act of July 2, 1926, section V, Bulletin 8, 1926, page 4, now appearing as section 13a of the national defense act, approved June 3, 1916, as amended to include March 4, 1927. The funds for its maintenance are taken from the appropriation for the reserves. A careful reading of the act fails to disclose the use of the term "training" or any language to indicate it was intended to be a reserve training activity. The true intent and purpose of the act is set forth in section 8, H. R. 10827, in the following language:

"For the purpose of increasing the efficiency of the Air Corps of the Army and for its further development the following five-year program is authorized."

The language of said section clearly distinguishes the service of reserve officers under the terms of the act from that of training periods when it says:

"The President is authorized to call to active service, with their consent, such number of Air Corps Reserve officers as he (Please turn to Page 456.)"

Editors Endorse Bill on Disabled Emergency Officers

UNANIMOUS endorsement of the Tyson-Fitzgerald legislation for the relief of disabled emergency officers of the Army is given by editors in all sections of the country. The sentiment of the press in support of this legislation is that this class of officers deserve better treatment than they have so far received and that the speedier the enactment of the measures now pending before Congress, the better the public will be pleased.

THE Chicago Daily Tribune (Republican), voicing the sentiments of a large section of the Mid-Western press, declares: "It was the emergency Army officer, of all the officer classes, who bore the brunt of the war. It was the emergency officer who took his three months' training and then went to the front as a platoon or company leader. Of the more than 2,000 officers killed in action or who died of wounds received in action about 90 per cent, it has been estimated, were emergency officers. The 2,000 disabled emergency officers should be retired, like the other classes, on three-quarters pay. For Congress to do less would be ingratitude of the meanest sort." The Akron, O., Times-Press (Independent) and Indianapolis News (Independent) hold similar views and favor enactment of remedial legislation.

THE St. Louis Globe Democrat (Republican) remarks: "For some reason that is not understood by the public, disabled emergency officers of the Army who served in the World War are denied retirement with pay, while eight other classifications of officers who perhaps did no more valorous service have been made eligible to such retirement. According to compilation by the Veterans' Bureau on March 31, 1925, only 2,079 disabled emergency Army officers would have been eligible for retirement at that time," and asks: "Why is this discrimination permitted?"

THE Pittsburgh Press (Independent) assails the "discrimination" and hopes that a "great wrong will be righted." The Colorado Springs Gazette (Republican), backs up the American Legion's advocacy of the measure, concluding: "The disabled emergency officer rightly can advance every claim that is put forward in behalf of regular or provisional officer, and when he is denied equal treatment he is denied simple justice and made the object of rank discrimination. The Legion is on firm ground when it insists that the Government correct this condition and it is to be hoped that Congress will not be long in meeting the request."

THE Newark Evening News (Independent) asserts: "It should be the duty of Congress to put this bill through as soon as possible and do justice to a devoted body of soldiers." The Kansas City Times (Independent) argues that: "Arguments of economy do not hold, because of the small number of veterans concerned and the limited expense that would be necessary to place them on the retirement list. Arguments from principle similarly are valueless, since the same type of recognition now sought long ago was accorded the eight other classes, two of them emergency classes. Nor is any impairment of the rights of enlisted men involved. The best evidence of this is the fact the American Legion, in which enlisted men strongly predominate, has called for enactment of the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill or its equivalent in every convention it has held for the last six years. Belated justice ought to be done these officers."

THE New York metropolitan press strongly urges the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill. The Herald Tribune (Republican) in an editorial captioned "Fairness to Disabled Officers," points out the fact that "2,000 veterans are eligible for this long-delayed retirement which the country owes to them in all fairness." The New York World (Democratic) states: "The Seventieth Congress should not adjourn without passing the Tyson-Fitzgerald bill." The New York Daily News (Independent) demands that Congress "even this thing up." The New York Mirror (Hearst) believes that "if there isn't prompt action at this session to remedy a condition so rankly unfair, the country will demand to know why."

THE Los Angeles Evening Express (Republican), thinks: "The bill should be enacted into law without further delay. Congress should be just, as the people of the country want to be just, to these men." The Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News (Democratic) pleads for the Tyson-Fitzgerald measure which "means simple justice for the disabled emergency officers." The Los Angeles Herald-Examiner (Hearst) queries: "How about paying off the debt to wounded officers?" The Washington Post (Republican) says the Senate Committee in its report "indorsed a policy of justice," and agrees with its contemporaries, the Washington Evening Star (Independent) and the Times that favorable action should be taken on the bill.

Distribution of Funds for Army Explained by Committee

FOLLOWING are the salient extracts from the report of the Committee on Appropriations concerning funds of the War Department bill now pending in Congress:

The 1929 estimates show a clear understanding of the prime needs of the Military Establishment. These are continuing the housing program, larger outlays for maintenance and repair, carrying on the five-year Air Corps program, checking further retrogression in the reserve of ammunition, proceeding with approved seacoast defense projects within and without the continental limits of the United States, and continuing experimental and development work in all branches. In all these respects the estimates deal generously and are a real step forward. They are referred to more in detail at other points in this report.

The Budget is intended to provide for an average of 118,750 enlisted men during the fiscal year 1929. In the bill of last year the committee provided for a corresponding average strength. As the Army was considerably under strength at that time, the committee's idea was, in order to provide for the first year's increment of 1,428 enlisted men in pursuance of the provisions of the five-year Air Corps program act, that recruiting might be so administered as to close the year with 119,998 men and still remain within the average number provided for. As it is working out the Army is absorbing the first year's increment, keeping the total number of men to 118,750, and the estimates for 1929 and the accompanying bill are on the basis of absorbing another 1,248 men during the fiscal year 1929. If the Air Corps actually needs and gets the men, the natural consequence will be to disrupt existing units. A table appears on page 1009 of the hearings, Part I, which shows how reductions would be met in 1929 and future years if the policy is continued of holding the average enlisted strength to 118,750 men. Of course, the question arises as to whether or not the number of men required by the Air Corps does not have some relation to the number of Air Corps officers. The authorized personnel strength of the Air Corps on June 30, next, under the five-year program, calls for 1,247 officers and 9,590 enlisted men, which figures out 7.69 enlisted men per officer. On September 30th, last, there were 985 officers on duty with the Air Corps. On the basis of 7.69 enlisted men per officer the enlisted strength on that date should have been 7,575, whereas it was 8,929. The Army is experiencing difficulty in getting its full quota of air officers and it might be that the number of enlisted men should be held down until that situation improves.

In this connection it is the intention of the committee that the funds provided in this bill will maintain an average enlisted strength of 118,750 men during the fiscal year 1929, and that that strength will not be reduced by reason of funds proving inadequate as the result of an underestimate or laws enacted after this bill shall have become law.

A reduction of $69,896 has been made by the committee in the estimate for "Pay of the Army" in the item for rental allowances for enlisted men. The committee believes that the number drawing such an allowance should not exceed $3,500. The present year number is 3,105. The estimate provides for 3,755.

Munitions Battalion.

The estimates contemplate the enlistment for a period of 18 months of 250 university students immediately following the close of their junior year with the object of giving them an intensive course of military training during the vacation period, to be resumed immediately following graduation for a further period of six months and supplemented with instruction in the basic procurement problems of the Army, the theory being that those so instructed would find employment in industrial plants engaged in producing or that are capable of producing certain classes of military supplies and materials so that in the event of war or national emergency, through their Army instruction and contact, they would aid the War Department in getting such plants into production promptly and to the extent that circumstances might require. The authorization cited for this action is found in the Act of June 8, 1926. (44 Stat., 705.)

The plan contemplates that the students chosen for such instruction shall be enlisted in the seventh pay grade, shall receive the pay of such grade throughout their enlistments, shall have their senior year's tuition at college paid, shall be supplied with a uniform while in camp, shall be paid a rental allowance and commutation of subsistence at the combined rate of $1.95 per diem while away from troops completing their final year at school, and, at the expiration of their enlistments, that they may be offered commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps. The expense of this plan for the fiscal year 1929 as included in the estimates is $180,938, on the premise that such number of students will be in lieu of a like number of regular enlisted men. The outright cost would be $258,140.50.

If there were any certainty that a reasonable number of students given such special instruction would become affiliated with industries upon which the Army might depend in time of war the plan would warrant some consideration. There is no such assurance. A graduate might go into one of many fields, none having relation to the Army or its material needs in the remotest sense. The plan seems so impractical that the committee has not allowed any funds for its execution, having reduced the several appropriations in which money was included on account thereof by sums aggregating $180,938. The committee suggests as an alternative that efforts be made to secure promising young men already identified with selected industrial concerns to accept commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps, to be trained along lines that would facilitate procurement in time of need. It is believed that suitable personnel could be obtained for this purpose from young men commissioned from year to year from the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

The appropriations and the amounts deducted from the estimates on account of each by reason of the committee's action follow:

Pay of the Army, $51,563; subsistence, $48,125; incidental expenses, $62,500; Army transportation, $18,750.

The Ration.

In the bill a year ago the committee made provision for a better Army ration, providing the necessary money so to do. Subsequently, the President exercising his right, prescribed a new Army ration costing well in excess of the ration for which the committee made provision. The Army, Navy, and Marine Corps are now on a parity as regards the ration, which is as it should be. The Chief of Staff says with respect to the improved ration that "it is the finest contribution to the Army since I have been in it." The appropriation provided in this bill on account of subsistence will make available a sum practically the same as for the current fiscal year, the original appropriation having been increased by a deficiency appropriation of $4,535,893. There also is available this year reappropriations totaling $2,691,939.

Horses and Mules.

The estimates include provision for the purchase of 3,000 horses and 1,981 mules. For the present fiscal year provision was made for the purchase of 2,150 horses and 1,450 mules.

The committee's position is this: With the advent of a trend toward motorized equipment, the susceptibility of horses to chemicals and poison gases, and the employment of tanks and aircraft, the horse's field of usefulness in modern warfare has become quite circumscribed. There is a division of opinion in the War Department right now as to the directions and extent curtailment might go or be applied. The committee feels that the subject is of the greatest importance and is not disposed to be any too liberal until it has been thoroughly thrashed out and a definite and positive conclusion reached. Large sums are carried in this bill on account of horses and mules for purchase, forage, stabling, medical care, transportation, harness, horse-drawn equipment, allowances to officers below the grade of major required to be mounted who supply their own mounts, to say nothing of the personnel employed in simply caring for the animals. The committee hopes, another year, to have a tabulation of all the cost factors. It is proposing a reduction in this bill of $25,000 in the estimate for allowances for officers supplying their own mounts.

Military Posts—New Construction.

This bill proposes to appropriate $1,874,000 in cash toward the construction work authorized in the Act of March 3, 1927 (44 Stat. 1390), and authorizes contracts involving an additional expenditure of $2,115,000. This takes care of all such construction work authorized to date. Since the Act of March 12, 1926 (44 Stat. 206), creating the military post construction fund, authorizations have been made for new construction at military posts to cost $20,027,000. Of this sum $13,308,000 has been previously appropriated.

Ordnance Department.

The estimates provide a total of $12,861,782, as against an original appropriation for the current fiscal year of $9,998,541, or an increase of $2,863,241. The committee has allowed the estimate, transferring $10,710 to "incidental expenses" on account of tuition expenses.

Included in this increased sum is $868,500 for completing the project for equipment for the field tests of new weapons developed since the war, including ammunition therefor. These are the 105-millimeter howitzer, the 75-millimeter pack howitzer, and 37-millimeter infantry-accompanying gun, and the 75-millimeter mortar. The Ordnance Department has been proceeding a number of years with the development of these new or improved types of weapons and they have now been adopted as standard. It is now proposed over a course of 10 years to produce a number of these guns for service use. That program calls for a total appropriation of $21,798,500. The sum in this bill will provide for six of the new 105-millimeter howitzers and 12 of each of the other types and ammunition for use with all. Another sizable increase under the Ordnance Department is $1,257,799 for 30-caliber ammunition, the total sum for such use being $3,024,701, contrasted with $1,766,902 for the current fiscal year. This sum will take care, for the first time, of all small arms ammunition expended by troops and some of the deterioration losses.

Ammunition Reserve.

The committee has made a careful inquiry into the foundation for published reports of an ammunition storage. Much testimony has been taken and illuminating data supplied, the publication of which, for obvious reasons, would be unwise.

The committee found that there are two reserve plans, or rather two plans dealing with the supply of ammunition in the event of war or threatened war. One represents an actual reserve and the other, adopted as recently as December 6, last, is the procurement plan to be executed should war become imminent. The former, the committee is advised, is the only one to which we need give consideration. Frankly, the committee found that a deficit does exist in this plan, but not of alarming proportions. It has been brought about by target expenditures in excess of replacements and by deterioration. There is no plan prescribed by law. The plans are formulated by the War Department under the general statute imposing upon the General Staff the duty of preparing plans for national defense. The subject is one of constant study and there is a continuing fluctuation by reason of recurring studies of mobilization plans, changes in organization, and the development and supply of new weapons.

The Budget estimates for 1929 are designed to check continued retrogression in various directions and the committee is advised that the War Department plans to present to the Budget for the fiscal year 1930 a program looking to the gradual elimination over a period of years of the existing deficit and that will meet annual losses through deterioration. With the subject under study and unsolved when the pending estimates were being built it would seem that this would be the orderly and logical course to pursue. Such recommendations as the War Department may submit must have the very careful consideration of all concerned.

The accompanying bill, in agreement with the Budget estimate, carries $7,293,034 for ammunition for all components. This compares with a sum less than $6,000,000 for the present fiscal year.

Air Corps.

The committee has adhered to the Budget estimate, which, in direct appropriation, provides $4,429,068 more than was made available for the current fiscal year. The principal items making up this net increase are:

For new airplanes and equipment $1,764,895
For operating expenses..... 2,045,956
For technical construction..... 673,684

The estimates and the bill provide for the purchase of 473 airplanes during the fiscal year 1929 for the Regular Army, the National Guard, and the Organized Reserves.

The estimate and the bill include $200,000 on account of lighter-than-air equipment. This is $75,000 less than the current year allocation.

Station Improvements, Air Corps.

For continuing providing necessary facilities at air stations, termed technical construction as distinguished from hangars, barracks and quarters, the bill proposes $1,736,619, which is in agreement with the estimate. This sum exceeds the current year allocation by $673,684.

Seacoast Defenses.

The Budget includes for 1929 $4,211,756 on account of our seacoast defenses within and without the continental limits of the United States. The comparable figure for 1928 is $3,348,638, including $37,000 carried in the First Deficiency Act, 1928. Of the total, approximately two and a quarter millions are intended to be applied on the project generally described above, the remainder being for maintenance and operation, and experimental, test and development work.

The appropriations proposed by the committee aggregate $4,038,716, a reduction of $173,040 under the Budget estimate. The committee has subtracted $204,000 from the estimates of the Chief of Coast Artillery on account of the proposed purchase of anti-aircraft fire-control equipment. A very remarkable instrument was developed by the late Maj. William P. Wilson, which he had almost perfected when he died on Nov. 29 last. This instrument has been turned over to a private concern to complete or perfect if it can, Major Wilson's work. The committee feels that funds should be provided (Please turn to Page 463.)

Hawaii Maneuvers Planned

THE United States Battle Fleet, based on the west coast, will sail on April 18 from San Francisco for Hawaii where for two months it will base during tactical maneuvers and gunnery exercises.

The Battleship Divisions Three, Four and Five, Destroyer Squadron Twelve, the Aircraft Squadrons, Battle Fleet and Submarine Divisions Eleven, Eighteen, Nineteen and Twenty, with the Light Cruiser Division Two of the Scouting Fleet, will leave the San Diego-San Pedro area on April 9, holding tactical exercises while en route to San Francisco where it is scheduled to arrive on April 17. Sailing again the next day (April 18) the fleet will engage in fleet problems, tactical exercises and gunnery practices as it proceeds to Hawaii.

After its arrival at Honolulu on April 29, the fleet will remain there for two weeks engaged in overhaul, refueling, etc., while the crews will be given leave and liberty before beginning further maneuvers and fleet problems off the Hawaiian Islands. With alternate periods in port and in training at sea, the fleet will remain in this area until June 18 when it sails for home ports on the west coast and the Light Cruiser Division will rejoin the Scouting Fleet on the east coast.

The Army plans to hold maneuvers on a minor scale in 1928, under the supervision of local commanders at Hawaii and Panama. Some phases of the maneuvers at Hawaii are expected to be in conjunction with the Navy. No extensive movement of troops or large concentration is planned, the Secretary of War states.

War is Declared

As the days pass, more and more men are learning that good health depends upon proper care of teeth and gums. This means regular dental inspection, and the daily use of a dentifrice that safeguards the work of the dentist.

Forhan's for the Gums, the formula of R. J. Forhan, D. D. S., for many years a Pyorrhea specialist, has a specific job to do. It is designed to thwart or to check Pyorrhea—the enemy that wages a ceaseless war against health, that strikes 4 out of 5 after 40 and thousands younger.

While firming gums, and keeping them sound, Forhan's helps to protect teeth against acids which cause decay. Its daily use is recommended by dentists everywhere. At all commissaries . . . in tubes, 35c and 60c.

Officers' Exams Discussed

must be attracted to the service, and the morale, zeal, and professional interest of the officers on the active list must be maintained. There must be attractiveness and reasonable assurance of stability of a career in the military or naval forces. These demand reasonable pay, reasonable advancement, reasonable permanency of commission, equality of opportunity, and satisfactory remuneration upon termination of active service.

(4) Efficiency demands that the full career of an officer be distributed in various ranks, in such manner that a thorough but not unduly prolonged training will be afforded in each rank in preparation for the duties of the successive higher ranks.

(5) The distribution of the authorized total number of officers among the several ranks should necessarily be in diminishing numbers as the scale of rank ascends. Such distribution should be determined by (a) war requirements, (b) peace-time limitations, and (c) reasonable progression throughout the active careers of officers.

(6) Reasonable and regular progression in rank throughout the active careers of officers, with proper periods of training and experience in each rank combined with maintenance of a sound and stable distribution will, on account of diminishing numbers in the higher ranks, be productive of a surplusage in the various ranks that normal promotion and attrition will not accommodate. It is necessary to provide means for the prevention of this surplusage.

(7) The interests of the Government are paramount. The interests of the individual must be conserved in so far as compatible therewith.

(8) The interests of the Government demand the early separation from the active list of the unfit and the survival of the best in the higher ranks.

(9) Officers separated from the active list should, in so far as qualified and suitable for service in an emergency, be given a status that holds them available for such service.

(10) Retirement is an essential feature of a military or naval system. All officers build up an equity therein from the time of entering the service. The remuneration of officers honorably separated from the active list for the convenience of the Government should satisfy this equity.

(11) The cost to the Government must be kept to a minimum consistent with the production of adequate and efficient forces for the national defense.

This bill, H. R. 8150, is made up of parts of Section 5 of the General Bill, H. R. 7743, with parts of Sections 3 and 4 added: The Secretary of War comments on the measure in a favorable tone, but calls attention to the fact that the President is not in favor of the cash consideration feature of the bill.

As the Secretary states, this feature of the bill is a departure from any provision of existing law, and comment upon the subject from the standpoint of possible Congressional action could be based only upon conjecture. Undoubtedly, however, complete information will be sought on the subject.

The bill provides for a return to the examination for promotion of officers below the grade of Colonel, abandoned, as will be noted in the history of the subject given by the Secretary of War in his letter, when the Army Reorganization was effected and the Classification legislation placed in the National Defense Act, so that at present, the only method of eliminating the inefficient officer is by means of classification. Both the Navy and the Marine Corps have the professional examination as does the Medical Corps, Dental Corps and Veterinary Corps of the Army. To the layman it would appear that any officer would appreciate the opportunity to demonstrate his fitness in a manner that would definitely stamp him as fit for advancement.

The comment of the Secretary of War in this connection is:

Subject to the above modification I favor the passage of this bill not primarily as a means of eliminating officers, but as a means placed at the disposal of the President to increase the efficiency of officers of the Army. The present Class B law and the system of education and training are now effective means of fostering individual efficiency. To supplement them by such professional examinations for promotion as may be deemed necessary would be a further step in this direction. The bill leaves such discretion to the President that any unnecessary and unproductive administrative effort or expense in conducting examinations may be avoided.

LIMIT FLYING OVER TROOPS.

In its desire to eliminate, insofar as possible, danger to ground troops resulting from low-flying airplanes during maneuvers, the War Department has set 75 feet as the limit below which aircraft will not be flown over troops.

The Journal Salutes

THIS week the Army and Navy Journal salutes:

(1) Troop G, Second Cavalry, Capt. LeR. Martin, commanding, which has been awarded the Goodrich Trophy.

(2) Lts. G. H. Towner and J. B. McHugh, U. S. M. C., and Sgt. R. Wenc, who are scheduled to fly to Managua from Florida today, on their record flight from Washington to Miami Feb. 2.

(3) The officers and crews of the U. S. S. Rochester and U. S. S. Omaha which stood first in their classes in engineering for the year to Jan. 1, 1928.

Army-Navy Games Pending

ANNOUNCEMENTS of the scheduling of Princeton by Navy for a football game at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Nov. 24, and of Nebraska by Army for a contest at New York or Lincoln, Nebr., on the same date were pending as this paper went to press.

Developments in the Army-Navy athletic situation during the past week included a call at the White House by Representatives Britten and Fish to lay the matter before the President, the issuance of a statement by Mr. Fish assailing General Winans and the Military Academy for declining to accept his invitation to meet at the Harvard Club, Feb. 1, for a conference with Admiral Nulton and another invitation to both Superintendents by the Mayor of Philadelphia for a conference there with respect to a 1928 Army-Navy game.

After calling at the White House, both Congressmen lauded the President's grasp of the situation. The White House to date has given no intimation that the President would take any action.

TROOP G, 2D CAV., WINS TROPHY.

TROOP "G," Second Cavalry, commanded by Capt. L. LeR. Martin, has been designated as the winner of the Goodrich Trophy for 1927. Second place was won by Troop "E," Eighth Cavalry, commanded by Capt. N. M. Imboden, and third place was won by Troop "G," Seventh Cavalry, commanded by Capt. C. O. Griffin.

Patriotic Conference Ends

THE Women's Patriotic Conference on National Defense, held in Washington, D. C., concluded its session yesterday afternoon, February 3, 1928, after placing itself on record in numerous resolutions as strongly favoring adequate National Defense and preparedness against any national emergency.

Speakers who addressed the meetings of the conference were unanimous in condemning the "alarmists" who, they said, destroy the national confidence in the good will of other peoples, and expressed the opinion that the increase of American trade should insure peace rather than bring about war.

Prominent men and women, both in official and private life, addressed the conference. Following is a partial list of speakers:

Secretary of War Davis, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Assistant Secretary of War Robbins, Lieut. Maitland, Assistant Secretary of State William R. Castle, jr., Maj. Gen. Summerall, Brig. Gen. Reilly and Rev. Edmund J. Walsh.

The following organizations participated: American Legion Auxiliary, American War Mothers, American Women's Legion, Auxiliary Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Auxiliary Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century, Daughters of the American Colonists, Daughters of American Revolution, Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War, Daughters of the Colonial Wars, Daughters of the Revolution, Government Club of New York, Government Club of Chicago, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, Ladies of the Union Veterans' Legion, Ladies' Auxiliary Veterans of Foreign Wars of United States, National Society of Colonial Daughters of America, National Society Daughters of the Founders and Patriots, National Society United States Daughters of 1812, National Auxiliary United Spanish War Veterans, National Society Dames of the Loyal Legion, National Society of New England Women, National Allied Veteran and Patriotic Organizations, National Society Patriotic Builders of America (Inc.), National Patriotic Council, New York Colony of New England Women, Order of the Gold Star, Order of the First Families of Virginia, Society of Sponsors of United States Navy, Society of Daughters of Holland Dames, Wisconsin Department Service Star Legion, Women's Relief Corps, Women of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor, Women's Overseas Service League, Women's Naval Service, Women's Constitutional League of Virginia, and National Society Daughters of the Union 1861-1865.

Army Notes

THE State Department has transmitted to the War Department a note from the British Ambassador stating that Admiral Sir Walter Cowen, Commander-in-Chief of American and West Indies Stations will visit the Canal Zone in H. M. S. "Dispatch" February 7th and 8th and March 25th, 26th and 27th. This information has been communicated by cablegram to the Commanding General, Panama Canal Department, with instructions to take the necessary steps to extend the usual courtesies and facilities to Admiral Cowen and this vessel. Admiral Cowen and staff visited Washington in H. M. S. "Calcutta" and H. M. S. "Cairo" October 17, 1927.

The Third Regimental Small Bore rifle (22 Cal.) competition was completed during the last week with a match between the winners of the battalions and special units groups. The team of six men representing Company "A" 3rd Infantry won the match handily with a combined score of 2,143. Company "I" 3rd Infantry, won second place for the Third battalion with a score of 2,045; Company "E" representing the Second Battalion made 1938 points and Service Company 3rd Infantry, which won in the special unit matches was fourth with 1882.

The first echelon of the Eighth Infantry has completed its record firing with the rifle. The results of the firing, which was completed last week, were announced in a memorandum which was issued at Fort Screven a few days ago.

A total of 63 men fired, making an average score of 307.33 out of possible of 350. This record is considered exceptionally good, as it is above the necessary marks for an expert, which is 306.

The Commanding Officer of the Eighth Infantry, Col. R. J. Burt, has expressed his satisfaction with the results attained by the first echelon. He says that it is in accordance with the best traditions of the Eighth Infantry and that it is his hope that the regiment will again lead the army in shooting.

Company "B", Capt. P. T. Fry, Commanding, had the highest company average, with a score of 314.66 for 15 men firing. Headquarters Company, Lieutenant W. S. Winn, Commanding, made the second highest average, with a score of 310.37 for eight men. Company "C" Capt. R. L. Wright, Commanding, was third highest, firing 17 men, for an average score of 306.77.

That plans be devised without delay for the provision at West Point of a suitable memorial to its graduates who served in the world war was urged by Maj. Gen. R. Bullard and Col. R. G. Alexander at a dinner of the West Point Society of New York at the Hotel Astor recently.

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Chief of Staff, who was the guest of honor, spoke briefly on Army Policies. Current administration and academic trends at West Point were discussed by Maj. Gen. E. B. Winans, Superintendent of the Academy.

Plans for an extensive radio hook-up for the interchange of messages to and from the dinners of graduates to be held throughout the country on March 17, in celebration of the One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Anniversary of the foundation of the Military Academy, were announced by Brigadier-General Palmer E. Pierce, who presided.

THE 26th Infantry, Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., now has a new skating rink and has organized a post hockey team. Inter-company matches are proving a source of very keen competition. The basketball season has proven very satisfactory and the 26th Infantry team bids fair to be a strong contender for the Corps Area championship.

Three rifle companies of the 16th Infantry together with Regimental Band participated in the ceremonies on Jan. 20 tendered on arrival in New York City of William T. Cosgrave, President of the Executive Council of the Irish Free State. A salute of 19 guns was fired by the Fort Jay saluting battery in honor of Mr. Cosgrave.

The First Battalion (less Battery "C"), 6th Field Artillery, left Fort Hoyle for Camp Holabird Jan. 12, 1928, under command of Major W. F. Sharp, with 11 officers and 282 enlisted men—portee, for the purpose of three months' instruction at the Motor School in connection with the experimental motorization of this command. After three months at the Motor School, the Battalion will proceed to Aberdeen, Maryland, for three months' instruction with tractors—then to Camp Meade, Maryland, when the first test of the practicability of the motorizing scheme will be accomplished.

Maj. Gen. W. S. Graves, commander of the Panama Canal Department, has requested retirement and will be relieved about April 1, to go to his home. While he will not reach retirement age of 64 years until next year, he can retire this year because of having had more than 40 years' service. His successor has not yet been named.

Secretary of War, Dwight F. Davis, spoke at the dedication of the sports bay at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City on January 29. He stressed team work as essential and lauded the influence of sports in international relations.

The Secretary of War has received a framed copy of King George's message, signed by the King, to the President of the United States when the Victoria Cross was conferred upon the Unknown Soldier of the United States. In accordance with information conveyed to the British Ambassador in previous correspondence, the message has been placed in the Historical Museum at Arlington National Cemetery in the same relative position as has been bestowed on royal decrees of other countries.

Tech. Sgt. Thomas Morales, Regimental Headquarters and Band, 8th Infantry, who was retired on January 25, has a military career of unusual interest. In announcing his retirement the General orders stated:

During the Spanish-American War, in 1898, Technical Sergeant Morales was serving in the Spanish Army and was captured by General Aguinaldo and held prisoner for several months. In 1900, he was captured with Aguinaldo and his forces by American Troops and, after being released, he enlisted in the United States Army, in which he has served faithfully ever since.

New 105-MM Howitzer Adopted

THE War Department has adopted and approved as standard for manufacture and issue a new 105-mm. howitzer, with its recoil mechanism, carriage and light mount. It is intended to add this weapon to the divisional artillery, which at present has no guns capable of delivering high angle fire.

The first experimental light howitzer was intended to be mounted interchangeably with the light gun on the light field carriage. The latter was of the split trail type permitting wide traverse and an elevation of 80 degrees. Almost at the same time a box or single trail carriage was built to mount the howitzer alone, and these materials were tested extensively by the Field Artillery Board. As a result of this test, several decisions were made which were of considerable importance to later development. The limit of elevation of the howitzer was reduced to 65 degrees and it was found that the interchangeable carriage was not practicable for this type of materiel. Then the howitzer development was delayed temporarily for reasons of economy pending the outcome of the new light field guns.

Recently this new design of howitzer was completed, and four units were delivered in the fall of 1927. These weapons appear to fulfill satisfactorily all functions of the divisional howitzer. Demonstrations were conducted at the Aberdeen Proving Ground, and the materiel was adopted. At the present time two units are undergoing further tests by the Field Artillery Board, and two units are being held at the Aberdeen Proving Ground for Ordnance purposes.

The 105-mm. Howitzer (M-I) is a very powerful weapon incorporating the most modern features of mobile carriage design. Its wide traverse facilitates rapid changes of targets, and its high elevation permits a plunging fire which is particularly efficacious with high explosive shell. Its range of over six miles is adequate for practically all missions of division artillery, and its large projectile—more than twice the weight of the gun projectile—renders it an extremely destructive weapon. At the same time, the rapidity of fire possible with the howitzer, while not as high as that of the field gun, seems to be sufficient for every purpose. This howitzer was designed primarily to be drawn by horses, as was required by the specifications for the materiel, but it is well suited for motor draft, indeed experience has shown that it has withstood satisfactorily very rigorous road tests when towed by trucks at speeds of from fifteen to twenty miles per hour.

ARMY HOUSING FACILITIES STILL INADEQUATE.

THERE will be 3,756 officers, 3,058 non-commissioned officers, and 20,195 enlisted men for whom no permanent housing facilities will exist at the close of the fiscal year 1929, provided the appropriations asked for in the present War Department estimates, now before the Congress, are made. This statement was made by Major General Charles P. Summerall in answer to a question by Representative Barbour, of California, Acting Chairman of the Sub-committee on War Department Appropriations of the House Appropriations Committee, during the hearings just brought to a close.

General Summerall also explained to the Committee how the Army arrived at the amounts asked for. He said:

"The total amount in the authorization is based upon the preliminary and original estimates of the Quartermaster Corps as to the cost of buildings in different parts of the country to carry out the building program, so that the total is arrived at from the elements of the program instead of having the elements adjusted to the total cost of the program."

COMMENT ON STAFF OFFICER'S ASSIGNMENT AS ATTACHE.

CONSIDERABLE discussion has arisen in Navy circles over what is termed a departure from policy in assigning staff officers to naval attaché posts, heretofore held by officers of the line. It was occasioned by the announcement that Capt. Lewis B. McBride, of the Construction Corps, U. S. N., has been selected to be naval attaché to Mexico City. Capt. McBride will relieve Lieut. Comdr. Donald W. Hamilton, U. S. N. Orders have not been issued for Commander Hamilton.

PERSHING DOESN'T LIKE "YES MEN" GEN. SMITH REVEALS.

MAJOR General Harry A. Smith, U. S. A., commanding the 7th Corps Area, revealed an interesting side of the character of General Pershing during the latter's recent visit to Kansas City. Speaking at a banquet in the General's honor, Gen. Smith related the following "unwritten history":

"I was sent up to Germany as officer in charge of civil affairs. I didn't know much about General Pershing. First thing you know, he ordered me to write a book of regulations for the conduct of the citizenry. I wrote it and dispatched it to Chaumont. He mulled over it and passed it around to other officers and then sent it back materially changed. He sent it back printed. I didn't like the changes a bit and I let Chaumont know I didn't."

"The next thing I knew, I walked General Pershing. He glared at me."

"I hear you don't like what we did to your regulations," said he.

"I told him I didn't. He told me rather sternly to come around to his headquarters that afternoon. I reported somewhat terror-stricken. I figured I was going to lose the best job I ever had. He seated me on a piece of old German furniture."

"We read over the regulations until I came to one I didn't like. I told him I didn't."

"If you don't like it," said he, "write a better one."

"I wrote it and he wrote one. He liked his better. I told him I liked it better, too. When we got through he actually had accepted some of my suggestions. But I felt I was ruined. I told a friend of his so just as I left his headquarters."

"That friend of his put me next. He told me that John J. Pershing liked to hear men say what they thought, not what they thought Pershing would like to have them think. That, gentlemen, is the character of our guest this evening."

NEW SYSTEMS FOR PENSACOLA INSTRUCTION ANNOUNCED.

A NEW system of ordering naval personnel for instruction in aviation to the Pensacola Naval Air Station has been adopted by the Navy Department to supersede the former system under which four large classes were ordered for aviation training each year.

Ten officers or ten enlisted men will report weekly to commence their training at Pensacola and it is expected that the number of pilots trained at that station will be increased after this calendar year.

The first group under this system will consist of ten enlisted men who will report on February 3. Similar groups of enlisted men will report on the 10th and 17th of February and will be followed thereafter by three successive groups of officers. This sequence will repeat itself. In this manner a uniform number of students will be under training throughout the year while formerly there were periods when the station's facilities were utilized at a maximum for some time after the reporting of a new class and as members were eliminated from training for various causes, vacancies occurred which could not be filled until the reporting of the next class.

BLANTON RISES TO SAVE COMPTROLLER'S WINGS.

REPRESENTATIVE BLANTON, of Texas, self-appointed champion of lost causes and penny-wise, pound-foolish "economies," has again taken up his cudgels—this time against the enactment of the proposed legislation as embodied in H. R. 9285, a bill to provide for the settlement of claims against the United States on account of property damage, personal injury, or death.

Claiming that the bill, as proposed, is simply a measure designed to "clip the wings" of the Comptroller General, Mr. Blanton rises to remark as follows:

"One of the most dangerous features of the bill is that it takes from the Comptroller General the right to pass on all claims against the Government up to $5,000. For instance, there are many claims from the Navy Department that the Comptroller General has been turning down, and the Secretary of the Navy has been criticizing him about it and he wants to have them paid. The Secretary would simply order that they be paid. So also would the War Department and the Interior Department, and with every other department of the Government. You are absolutely clipping the wings of the Comptroller General of the United States."

RETIRED ENLISTED ALLOWANCE INCREASE IS URGED.

THE Adjutant General of the Army has been petitioned by the General H. G. Otis Post, V. F. W., to recommend the increase of allowances for retired enlisted men from $15.75 per month to $30.00 per month. The petition, signed by J. H. Hoeppel, Post Commander, says in part: "being fully cognizant of the increased cost of living since the period of March 2, 1907, when our allowances were established at $15.75, we believe our allowances in lieu of rations, clothing and quarters should now be increased to $30.00 per month."

"Increasing infirmities of age, not only of ourselves, but also of our dependents, added to the fact that practically all avenues of lucrative employment are more or less closed to novices after the age of 50, handicaps the retired professional soldier in obtaining employment, even when physically able."

CRITICS OF SERVICES IN NICARAGUA ANSWERED.

AN unusually clear and comprehensive article on what the Navy and Marine Corps are accomplishing in Nicaragua appears in a recent issue of "The Congregationalist," a religious publication. It was written by Capt. L. M. Overstreet, U. S. N., in reply to an article which appeared in the same publication that was written by Dr. H. C. Culbertson entitled "Killing God's Children in Nicaragua." In his article Capt. Overstreet points out that the "stabilization policy" in force is for the purpose of preventing wanton bloodshed and that hysterical outbursts in this country in favor of revolutionists and bandits are based on misconception of the situation.

AIR CORPS ESTIMATES SUFFERED DRASTIC CUTS.

AIR Corps estimates for the fiscal year 1929 received rough treatment at the hands of the Director of the Budget. Although, ostensibly, only $1,078,000 was eliminated by the Budget as a direct cut, the limiting figure set for the Army as a whole forced the paring down of necessary funds included in the original Air Corps Estimates by nearly $9,000,000.00, this in spite of repeated assurances that the Air Corps would receive an allotment sufficient to carry out the Second increment of the Five-Year Air Program as worked out with the approval of the War Department.

During the course of the hearings before the Sub-committee on War Department Appropriations Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, F. Trubee Davison, presented tables showing the various projects affected by the cut and stated in part:

"Additional funds will be required under subtitles E, F, and H. Under E, which is the subtitle which takes care of Air Corps technical construction, we will need $2,155,801 more than is included in the present 1929 estimates. Under F, which is the item to provide for heavier-than-air equipment, an additional $3,349,327 will be required to carry out the second increment of the five-year program. I have already mentioned that $2,171,285 is needed to buy the 27 bombers. The remaining $1,178,042 is accounted for by substituting modern engines for Liberty engines in 63 observation planes. Under H, which is the item for operating expenses and includes as its principal subdivisions gasoline, oil, spare parts, and landing fields, we need an additional $2,704,645, to carry out the second increment of the program. In order to show how these additional amounts under E, F, and H would be expended, I am including a list of the proposed expenditures under each item."

ARMY WANTS ONLY RECRUITS WITH EXCELLENT RECORDS.

THE erroneous notion that the Army is a place to reform wayward youths is still held by a few individuals who do not apparently read the statements issued regularly by various Army information bureaus to the effect that recruits for enlistment must be "above" and not "below" average. The latest episode has occurred in Dayton, where the Dayton Journal reports that one William Wallace who was "arrested twice within the last four months on charges of burglary, larceny and stealing automobiles," and who "confessed nearly two-score burglaries" was sent to an "Army training school" * * * by Judge Markey."

LICKING TWO EDITORS WILL PUT YOU IN CLASS AA.

A UNIQUE incident was described by Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely in his recent testimony before the Senate Committee concerning the operation of Class B boards. Explaining the operation of the Board he said:

"No Board will eliminate a man to Class B when there is one man only who reports adversely upon him. Especially if it is stated, 'This officer is bad on so and so.' Why is he bad? We find out why he is rated bad. We may find out that in 15 years' service this is the only report against this officer. As I told an officer the other day—he had it put on his record that he licked an editor, because the editor reflected on his honesty—he couldn't do anything else. I said, 'That is not going to reflect on your efficiency report. You probably did right and will get credit.'"

"Submarine sighted—position 45"

Battle Planes leap into action—springing from a five-acre deck—sure of a landing place on their return, though a thousand miles from shore.

This marvel of national defence was accomplished—and duplicated—when the airplane carrier, U. S. S. Saratoga, and her sister ship, U. S. S. Lexington, were completely electrified.

In each, four General Electric turbine-generators deliver, combined, 180,000 horse power to the propellers—enough to drive the ship at 39 miles an hour—enough to furnish light and power for a city of half a million people.

The General Electric Company has developed powerful marine equipment, as well as electric apparatus for every purpose of public advantage and personal service. Its products are identified by the initials G.E.

And in the familiar occupations of daily life, electricity is working wonders just as great—improving industrial production, lifting the burden of labor, speeding transportation, and multiplying the comforts of home.

Navy Notes

A CLASS in submarine training will convene at the Submarine Base, New London, Conn., of July 9, 1928.

Applications should be submitted in accordance with Part E, Section 3, Bureau of Navigation Manual and must reach the Bureau not later than March 15, 1928. Such applications shall be accompanied by a report from a medical officer that the officer is physically qualified for submarine training.

Officers who will have completed two years' sea duty on July 1, 1928, subsequent to graduation from the Naval Academy, and other officers who have completed two years' commissioned service, are eligible for submarine training.

Destroyer Division 38, which has been on duty with U. S. Naval Forces in European waters is due to arrive at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, February 15. After operating for a month and a half with the Scouting Fleet, the Division will sail about March 31 for San Pedro which has been assigned by the Department as its home port. The destroyers have been ordered to the west coast to report to the Commander-in-chief of the Battle Fleet for duty with the Aircraft Squadron, Battle Fleet with the Saratoga and Lexington.

Division 38 is composed of the U. S. S. Smith Thompson, Barker, Tracy, Borie, John D. Edwards, Whipple.

A summer practice cruise will be made by 300 students of the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps, under instruction at Yale, Harvard, Northwestern universities and the Georgia School of Technology. The Flagship of the Scouting Fleet, U. S. S. Wyoming, has been assigned for this cruise and will leave New York on June 14 for Charleston, S. C., where the unit from Georgia Tech will be embarked on June 18.

The U. S. S. S-3 was the center of national attention this week, when Rear Adm. F. H. Brumby reported to the Navy Department early Jan. 30 that the submarine had not been heard from since Jan. 28, when she was separated from the other submarines and the tender Camden in a rain squall following a gale. A later report to the Navy Department on the same date told of the submarine's safety and stated that the S-3 was proceeding under her own power. Navy officers and officials at the Department pointed out that it was not unusual for smaller vessels of a convoy to become separated during bad weather conditions.

A competitive examination of chief pay clerks and pay clerks for appointment to the grade of assistant paymaster will be held on or about April 15, 1928. Candidates for such appointment must be not over 35 years of age at the time of appointment, about July 1, 1928, and only those chief pay clerks and pay clerks whose records have been above average since appointment in the grade of pay clerk will be authorized to

U. S. N. A. Graduates' Dinner

THE Third Annual Dinner of the Naval Academy Graduates' Association of N. Y., Inc., composed of 400 graduates of the Naval Academy residing in New York and vicinity will be held at the Hotel Brevoort, starting at 6:45 p. m., Wednesday evening, Feb. 8.

Besides being an annual dinner of this organization this affair will be a testimonial to Rear Admiral C. P. Plunkett, U. S. N., Commandant of the Third Naval District, who retires on February 15th.

With the 2,567 graduates and friends who attended the Informal-Get-Together-Supper Dance held at the Commodore the night before the Army and Navy game still in their mind, the Committee in charge of the Third Annual Dinner is planning on a large "turn out"—both because it is the annual evening get together of the graduates of the Naval Academy in New York and because it is a testimonial to one of the most popular representatives the Navy Department has ever had in New York City.

The Committee which is making the arrangements is composed of: Chairman R. E. Perry, 1914; T. R. Richardson, 1884; A. J. Wadhams, 1895; F. McCommon, 1901; C. C. Vickrey, 1915; D. King, 1919; R. De W. Higgins, 1923.

At this Annual Dinner new officers and directors of the Graduates' Association of New York will be elected. Those nominated for the presidency are: Frank J. Sprague, class of 1878; Walter M. McFarland, class of 1879; Walter R. Addicks, class of 1882.

The cost of the dinner will be $2.50 per plate and was purposely made as low as possible, consistent with good service and good food in order to attract the greatest number of graduates—especially from the younger classes. All graduates of the Naval Academy on the active or retired list of the Navy, as well as those in civilian life in New York City and vicinity are urgently requested to be present. Information in regard to this dinner can be obtained from the chairman of the Committee, Mr. R. E. Perry, room 1440, 195 Broadway, New York City (telephone Cortlandt 7700).

Invitations have been extended to the officers of the Naval Academy Graduates' Associations in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Los Angeles as it is expected representatives from these districts will attend.

Navy Ship Standing

FOLLOWING is the standing of the highest of the following classes of vessels in the United States Navy in Engineering for the year to Jan. 1, 1928:

The following tentative schedule of operations for the U. S. S. Lexington has been approved by the Department:

The Commander of Destroyer Division Nine, Capt. Daniel P. Mannix, has shifted his flag from the Dallas to the Dobbin.

The U. S. S. Texas, flagship of the United States Fleet, will leave Guantanamo, Cuba, Feb. 9, to visit New Orleans where it will remain during the Mardi Gras celebration, returning to Guantanamo Feb. 23.

Civil Engineer Corps

L. T. COMDR. I. P. GRIFFIN has been ordered to duty as public Works Officer of the fuel oil station, Yorktown, Va. This duty is in addition to his present assignment as Public Works Officer of the Navy Mine Depot, Yorktown, Va.

Lt. Comdr. C. A. Trexel reported to the Director, Naval Petroleum Reserves, Navy Department, on Feb. 1, 1928, for temporary duty on the completion of which he will proceed to Casper, Wyoming, for duty as assistant to the Officer in Charge of the Naval Petroleum Reserves in that vicinity.

With the recent death of Capt. Frank O. Maxson, C. E. C., U. S. N., retired, the Civil Engineer Corps lost one of its oldest members. Captain Maxson was first commissioned as a Civil Engineer in the Navy on Oct. 29, 1881. He performed duty as Civil Engineer and Public Works Officer at Pensacola, Fla.; Boston, Washington, Mare Island, Puget Sound, Norfolk, Olongapo, Cavite, Philadelphia, Portsmouth, N. H., and Key West.

S-4 Work Progresses

REPORTS from S-4 salvage workers during the week showed that unexpected progress was being made despite the fact that the divers had labored at times in water some eight degrees below freezing.

Due to the perfection of devices which enable the divers to work in and about the sunken craft, even though the temperatures drop below the freezing point, Navy Department officials feel that the work will proceed from now on uninterrupted by the cold. This is construed as meaning that unless storms and heavy weather interfere with the operations for the raising of the S-4, the work will be virtually continuous and will be brought to a successful conclusion much earlier than had been believed possible when the salvage first was undertaken.

In a report to the Navy Department, Capt. E. J. King, in charge of the salvage force, said preparations were underway for the blowing of ballast and safety tanks.

The court of inquiry, created by Secretary Wilbur, to determine the cause, and responsibility for the S-4 loss, as well as to report on the efficiency of rescue operations, is still at work drafting its report. The work of compilation has been found to be more of a task than was generally expected and as yet no definite date for its completion and submission to the Secretary has been fixed. The chances are that the document will be delivered within the next week.

President Talks on Navy

IN an address on the budget this week, President Coolidge urged that no time limit be placed on the Navy program, which he declared "does contemplate the building of ships as fast as possible." He said in part:

A construction program for the Navy is now receiving the consideration of Congress. The authorization of 1916 was the last complete Navy program, and that has been practically completed. The recommendation now before the Congress to replace obsolete naval vessels and moderately increase our naval strength contemplates an orderly construction procedure; nothing more. It contemplates that the construction program will be carried out as conditions dictate and Treasury balances warrant.

It considers our own requirements alone and carries no thought of entry into competitive construction with any other nation. The plan I have indorsed does not contemplate any limitation of time as to the beginning or the completion of this tentative program. But it does contemplate the building of ships as fast as possible.

U. S. NAVAL RESERVE.

THE following commissions have been issued in the Naval Reserve: Ens. W. B. Lane, A. V. (S.); Lt. R. P. Hazlehurst, S. C. V. (G.); Ens. L. S. Tappan, C. V. (S.); Ens. W. Culbert, D. E. V. (G.); Lt. (j.g.) S. E. Payson, A. V. (G.); Lt. (j.g.) A. W. Dalrymple, E. V. (S.).

Marine Corps Notes

HAVING finished his inspection of the Marine forces in Nicaragua, Major General Lejeune, Marine Corps Commandant, has sailed from Corinto on the oil tanker Salinas and will arrive at San Pedro Feb. 5 to begin an inspection of the Marine Corps bases in the Department of the Pacific.

Judged from personal reports made by General Lejeune to friends in Washington, he left Nicaragua feeling highly pleased with conditions there. In one of these communications, the General expressed high praise for the marines and the work they are doing in Nicaragua. His official report will not be made until he returns to Washington in about two weeks.

General Lejeune will go to San Diego direct from San Pedro and that base will be the first in the Department of the Pacific to be inspected by him during his present tour. The headquarters' base at San Francisco next will be inspected and from there the General will go to Mare Island. He is expected to leave Mare Island for Washington as soon as his inspections there are concluded.

Plans and specifications for the construction at the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., of the first group of three barracks designed to house 1,500 men have been completed and it is expected that the contract will be awarded about March 20. Work is progressing on the preparation of plans and specifications for the other units in this project and it is expected that the entire project, estimated to cost in the neighborhood of $2,205,000 will be under contract by June 30 of the current year.

Brig. Gen. E. R. Beadle, commanding the Nicaraguan Guardia Nacional, has established recruiting stations in all important cities of the country to stimulate recruiting, dispatches from Managua state. gency, or could those increments be absorbed in a way that would not, generally speaking, seriously affect the efficiency of the organization?"

Secretary Davis: "As I see it, it can not come from the garrison of the foreign possessions, which means that it must come, not from 118,750 men, but from, roughly, 70,000 men. Seventy thousand would be the number of combatant troops from which it would come. So it means a reduction of 6,240 from 70,000."

Mr. Harbourn: "A little less than 10 per cent."

Secretary Davis: "I do not like to say it would cripple the Army. I will say we will get along, but no doubt it will affect the efficiency to a certain extent in peace times. A more serious thing would be the effect it would have on training in case of emergency, because then you have to fill in the elements at the outbreak of the emergency, and those elements would be practically demobilized under this plan."

Navy Program Gains Support

spect to world conditions that makes it necessary for us to build up the Navy?"

Admiral Jones replied:

"If we do not (build up the Navy) we will find ourselves just that much further behind the procession. Most of the building provided in this program will not be laid down before 1931, and work could easily be stopped on it."

In these few words the Admiral told the Committee in striking fashion that the United States had fallen too far behind the procession of other world powers and had delayed the catching-up processes too long.

In replying to questions by the chairman of the Committee, Representative Butler (Rep.), of West Chester, Pa., Adm. Jones said that the difference in size and character of the ships had much to do with the failure of the conference.

Another reason attributed for the failure concerned the size of guns, the United States requesting that the size of ships be so fixed that they would be capable of carrying eight-inch guns, he said.

Asked by Chairman Butler as to what constituted a peace-time fleet, Admiral Jones said that in his opinion, it was "the minimum requirements regardless of what any one else had."

Replying to the question of Chairman Butler as to why the conference failed, Admiral Jones said:

"No commission sanctioned by this body or anyone in the United States, could accept, by agreement, a position of inferiority to any other nation on the sea, either in fact or in principle. We could not accept a position of inferiority by agreement."

Protection of its "lines of communication" in overseas commerce is an essential duty of the United States Navy, and to assure this the Navy must be relative in numbers to that of Great Britain or any other country, Rear Admiral Jones declared, continuing his testimony, Feb. 2.

At the Geneva Conference, Admiral Jones said, Great Britain contended that it needed more cruisers than other countries to protect its foreign trade routes.

"We ourselves have the same trade lines as Great Britain, and have the same right as Great Britain to protect them," he asserted.

After Representative Gambrell had asked whether this action of the British delegation caused dissatisfaction in the British Cabinet, and was responsible for the calling back to London of the British delegation, Admiral Jones said he did not think he was in a position to express the views of the British Cabinet. He said, replying to Representative Gambrell, that "at no time during the negotiations could it be said that an agreement was near on the crux of the question—that is, cruisers."

Admiral Jones stated that the United States could not reach an agreement on the British proposal of 6-inch guns "because it would have placed us in a position of hopeless inferiority."

Asked by Representative Hale whether the United States might have reached an agreement at the Geneva conference with Japan, Admiral Jones said that, generally "we could have reached an agreement with Japan, making certain adjustments on ratios, which would not have occasioned serious opposition on our part."

Discussing the plan of Great Britain, which he said would place the United States at a hopeless inferiority, Admiral Jones said the American delegation "could not consent to having another nation in the world tell us where we can travel and where we can trade." England, he explained, wanted numbers, and the United States, size.

A total of $88,233,067, for construction and maintenance, would be required to supply airplanes for the 5 airplane carriers and 25 light cruisers called for in the naval building program, the committee was informed on January 30 by officers of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

Submarines and safety devices for submarines were discussed Jan. 31, with the Chief Constructor of the Navy, Rear Adm. J. D. Beuret, giving testimony.

Admiral Beuret disclosed that the nine destroyer leaders planned in the program would have a speed of between 35 and 36 knots and be useful in directing attacks by destroyer squadrons.

Representative McClintic brought out in questioning Admiral Beuret that the ordnance equipment on the cruisers would be superior in range to present types of guns.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1928.

A Nation situated like ours should maintain in a state of possible efficiency a Navy adequate to its responsibilities. Congress should provide adequately not only for the present preparation but for the future maintenance of our naval force.—U. S. GRANT.

THE PRESIDENT and Senator Borah in common with many newspapers, have been giving voice to concern over their interpretation of the remarks of naval officers in connection with the necessity of further naval construction. Rear Admiral Plunkett, for example, was criticised for an alleged threat of war against Great Britain. Of course, Admiral Plunkett made no such threat. What he did was to envisage the possibilities of attack and to point out the need of execution of the program which Secretary Wilbur has submitted to the Congress. Admiral Hughes also, has been condemned because, in the discharge of his duty, he expressed certain sound views before the House Naval Committee. Senator Borah insists the statements of Admiral Hughes and Plunkett are "mischievous," and he has appealed to the taxpayers to call a halt upon the "mad policy," which it may be mentioned the President has approved and the House is about to authorize.

When the House Naval Committee, practically unanimously, decided against a "paper" program, it expressed the sentiment of the country. In spite of press criticism, the people have not forgotten the causes responsible for the failure of the Geneva Conference, and they have drawn the obvious conclusions therefrom. So, Mr. Borah's appeal is not likely to receive much support, especially in view of the knowledge that he is one of the strongest advocates of debt collection, and such a policy, with which we are in agreement, is far more dangerous to peace than additional naval construction. Indeed, if the American people are determined to enforce the policies which they have so emphatically approved, then the effective way to avoid war is by the possession of adequate strength. Only in this manner can we be sure of being let alone to pursue our own course in peace.

THERE IS NO MORE active spokesman for peace than General Pershing. His views in this respect, which represent the views of the Army and all those who know the horrors of war, have been expressed repeatedly. The latest occasion was in Detroit where he delivered a speech before the united business organizations and subsequently to the Reserve Officers and World War veterans. The week earlier he made a like expression at Kansas City, where he addressed the Chamber of Commerce and subsequently the Reserve Officers and World War veterans. And as the distinguished speaker dwelt upon the value of peace, he accompanied it with a warning that only through reasonable and sane preparation could it be preserved.

The enthusiasm with which General Pershing is greeted wherever he goes and the emphatic applause which punctuates his utterances, show the high regard in which he is held and the agreement with the views he expresses. Brig. Gen. E. L. King, Commandant at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, tellingly utilized the fact that the General does not appear in uniform to prove that the Army and its great leader do not continue war after it is ended, but, like the simple Americans they are, devote themselves to the ways of peace. "This is the answer to the cry of 'Prussianism,'" said General King.

How true. The Army and the Navy of the United States are in no sense militarists. They are Americans, who are doing their jobs earnestly, faithfully and efficiently. Happy is the country whose protection lies in the hands of such right-thinking men.

FRANCE'S INSISTENCE that any anti-war treaty entered into with the United States be confined in its condemnation only to "aggressive" war, has aroused considerable discussion as to what the term really means. This government realizes that, human nature as it is, talk of abolishing war will continue to be talk whatever the number of treaties prescribing the "outlaw" that may be negotiated. But it does not propose to be drawn into a position where it will find itself forced to determine whether or not a war into which France may be drawn is "aggressive." If its decision should be against France, thereby it would incur the enmity of the French Government and the French people; if the decision were in favor of France, a demand would grow that we support her arms in the conflict. The same dilemma would confront us with other nations with which we had entered into like treaties. Again, a nation bent on war might construe as aggressive an act of preparation on the part of the country it wished to conquer or a mistake made by a subordinate officer, or do what Bismarck did to France in the famous Ems incident, and then call upon the United States to issue a declaration of condemnation of the alleged offender. It is obvious the Briand proposal contains many elements of danger for American peace. In the end, doubtless, treaties will be negotiated, which, with a formal denunciation of war, will provide for those desirable and well tried means for the settlement of disputes—conciliation and arbitration.

THE ARMY APPROPRIATIONS Bill as reported to the House does not provide for the second increment of the Air Corps Personnel, which the Committee indicates should be secured by absorption and consequent reduction in other arms. This was not the intent of Congress when it passed the five-year air program. No less an authority than Hon. Martin B. Madden at the close of last session said: "Congress has at this session indicated its desire that the Army should be kept at 118,750 men as a minimum, and expressed the belief that the additional personnel for the five-year aviation program should be in addition to this number."

We believe that Mr. Madden's analysis of the intent of Congress is correct. We look for the inclusion of sufficient funds in the War Department bill to provide for the enlisted increase required by the Air Corps without reduction in the number of enlisted men in any other arm. Robbing Peter to pay Paul does not strengthen our National Defense.

HERE IS A suggestion for General Summerall to ponder: Why are not all the Army schools placed upon the same basis of rank for their respective Commanding Officers? We could name several schools which justify such treatment. Think it over General.

SERVICE HUMOR

NO PLACE FOR DIOGENES.

A soldier went to his colonel and asked for leave to go home to help his wife with her spring cleaning.

"I don't like to refuse you," said the colonel, "but I've just received a letter from your wife saying that you are no use around the house."

The soldier saluted and turned to go. At the door he stopped, turned and remarked:

"Colonel, there are two persons in this regiment who handle the truth loosely, and I'm one of them. I'm not married."

NOT FROM WALL STREET.

Post Phone Operator—"I have your party. Deposit five cents, please."

Souse at Outside Station—"Whatzat?"

Operator—"Please deposit your money."

Souse—"Listen, wat I wan 's a conversashum from a fren', not financial advice from a stranger."

SILENCE GIVES CONSENT.

Cadet's Father (appearing on darkened veranda)—Are you young folks all enjoyed yourselves?

(Absolute silence).

Cadet's Father (returning indoors)—That's fine!

IN THIS COLD WEATHER.

Here lies the body of Dick Moon's daughter Who died of doing what her mother taught her:

She hung her clothes on a hickory limb And took a hard chill instead of a swim, Which medics said she hadn't orter.

CURSED ECHO.

It was a cool, clear evening in June. They were drifting slowly over the placid surface of the little mountain lake. The weather and the rest of the guests at the hotel had been thoroughly discussed. At last a thought struck Lt. Jones.

"Have you heard our echo?" he asked; "it's quite famous."

"Oh no, I'd love to," she replied breathlessly.

"All right. Here goes; now listen—halloo!"

"Halloo."

"What are you doing?"

"None of your d—n business."

FORE!

Under the caption "Probable News Items," the U. S. S. New Mexico's ship paper says:

"Annapolis, Md., June 5.—Midshipmen J. K. Schall, S. Mel Strong, Joe Gump and John Doe were today refused their graduation diplomas from the U. S. Naval Academy because of their failure to complete their golf course assignments, which are a part of the rigid curriculum at Annapolis."

NO MONKEY BUSINESS!

Judge—You say the unwritten law would have justified you in killing Pvt. Cohen, and you had pulled a gun on him. Yet you did not fire. Why?

Mr. Goodstein—"Vell, judge, when I pointed my pistol at him he says, 'How much you vant for that gun?' I ask you, judge, how could I kill a man when he was talking business?"

WHEN YOU ARE TRANSFERRED

ASK the Journal about living conditions, etc., at the Post to which you have been directed to proceed.

All questions will be answered by Capt. Charles J. Sullivan, 26th Infantry, U. S. A., author of "Army Posts and Towns," who has made a thorough study of conditions and facilities at all Army Posts.

T. E. D.: Fort Eustis, Virginia, is 12 miles from Williamsburg, Va., and about 20 miles from Newport News. There is a scheduled Bus Service to both towns, but a private car is considered a necessity at this post. Colored servants are quite easily secured for about $6 per week. There is a post commissary and the Post Exchange operates a grocery store. An excellent General Store is located in Lee Hall, Va., 3 miles from the post. There are sufficient quarters available for both married and single officers assigned to the post. Roads in vicinity of the post are paved and open to traffic all year round. Hunting, fishing, swimming and golf are the principal sports. Golf course on the post as well as tennis courts. Hot in summer, cold in winter. Cotton worn in summer; wool in winter. Two Chaplains assigned to the post; one Protestant and one Catholic.

ASK THE JOURNAL

ALL questions on which our readers desire information will be answered as soon as possible after receipt. If there is any query you have in mind, send it to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL QUESTION EDITOR. It will save you time and trouble. Avail yourselves of this "Service to the Services."

An Army Net Radio Opr.—Questions concerning temporary staff sergeants' rating for Signal Corps Radio Operators in the Army Net should be addressed through official channels to Maj. O. K. Sadtler, Room 3433, Munitions Building, Washington, D. C.

S. F. L.: Plans and details of construction on Army Housing Units are developed in the Office of The Quartermaster General. Congress merely specifies what sums shall be expended at certain posts and the purpose for which the money may be spent; such as for hospitals, hangars, stables, officers' quarters, enlisted men's barracks, etc., leaving the design to the Army itself except in isolated instances.

IN THE JOURNAL 60 YEARS AGO

OWING to the exciting contest between Rubi and Martinez for Governor of Sinaloa at one time threatening civil war, the U. S. Flagship Pensacola, the Saranac and the Saginaw were lying off Mazatlan, Mexico, in company with the British ships-of-war Scout and Malacca. Rubi was finally declared Governor-elect by the Congressional electors, but the ships stood by until all threats of belligerent action had subsided.

The USS De Soto arrived at Hampton Roads January 27, 1868, where she awaited the arrival of Rear Admiral H. K. Hoff, USN, who had been ordered to assume command of the North Atlantic Squadron. The gunboat Penobscot was also in the Roads under orders to sail for Aspinwall.

Change Leavenworth Policies

THE recent decision of the War Department to commence a two-year course of instruction at the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, in September, 1928, for 120 students, and at the same time to continue the present course of one year for the School year 1928-1929 for 80 students, has made necessary a change in the existing policies governing the selection of students for that school.

The policy now in effect prescribes availability for attendance at the schools by all officers of combatant branches, less than 50 years of age with satisfactory records of service and who possess certain fundamental information regarding the tactics and technique of the special arms and the solution of tactical problems. The student officers in general are selected from field officers and the senior 1,000 captains, although Chiefs of Branches are authorized to recommend ten per cent of their quotas so that officers detailed to attend the final one-year course of instruction shall be selected as far as practicable from field officers who by reason of age might not have an opportunity to attend the two-year course.

For the one-year course 75 students will be allotted to the combatant branches and five students to the non-combatant branches. The students allotted to the combatant branches will be apportioned as follows: Infantry 30; Cavalry 11; Field Artillery, 12; Coast Artillery, 10; Engineers, 5; Air Corps, 5; Signal Corps, 2; The Adjutant General's Department, Quartermaster Corps, Medical Corps, Ordnance Department and Chemical Warfare Service will furnish one student each for this course.

Of the 120 students for the two-year course, 100 will be allotted to the combatant branches, 10 to the non-combatant branches and 10 will be selected by the

U. S. M. A. Graduation June 9

West Point (Special).—The graduation of the class of 1928, U. S. M. A., will take place on June 9, 1928, it was announced definitely Jan. 31. This date is earlier than is usual; the graduation in 1927 was on June 14.

Upon the recommendation of the Superintendent of the Military Academy the artillery practice of the Cadets will be transferred to Fort Eustis from the Military Academy, thus doing away with the necessity of closing the Storm King Road for artillery practice. It is to enable the Cadets to get their artillery firing, ordinarily obtained at West Point, that the date of graduation has been made early.

As artillery firing is dangerous to persons traveling on the Storm King Highway it has been necessary in the past to close this highway during practice. The right to close the highway was given to the Military Academy when the Military Academy granted permission to build the Storm King Highway over its grounds. However, to afford the motoring public the greatest possible convenience, it has been decided to transfer the artillery practice to Fort Eustis.

Secretary of War. Of those selected from the combatant branches, 41 will be from the Infantry, 13 from the Cavalry, 16 from the Field Artillery, 15 from the Coast Artillery, 7 from the Engineer Corps, 6 from the Air Corps and 2 from the Signal Corps. One student will be allotted to each of the non-combatant branches except the Medical and Quartermaster Corps which will be given two and three students respectively.

Lands Medical Corps Standards

HIGHLY praising the achievements of the Army Medical Corps in peace and war, Maj. Gen. C. P. Summerall, Chief of Staff, at the graduating exercises held at the Army Medical Center, Washington, D. C., Jan. 31, said in part:

The military surgeon differs from other members of the medical profession in that he must be not only a skillful doctor, but a proficient soldier. The accomplishments of a succession of distinguished medical officers in each generation are an inheritance of which the Army is exceedingly proud. They are at once an example and an inspiration to you who in your turn may add your names to the list of our medical immortals.

However, it is not so much my desire to place before you the examples of those who have attained distinction as to speak of the less conspicuous mass of the personnel, of which you must at first form a part. The ideals of the Medical Corps have always been high. In spite of difficulties at times in securing young men for vacancies, those responsible have wisely refused to lower the standards for admission, but rather have increased them as opportunities for preparation were improved. The result has been a carefully selected group of professional men whose education, personality, and character have guaranteed superior efficiency. By affording opportunity for specializing in the Service Schools, and to a small extent in medical schools, the Medical Corps has developed specialists in every department and has kept abreast of the profession in civil life. Wise administration has been shown further by retaining the examination for promotion, while the rest of the Army discontinued such a requirement. Line officers have been much impressed by the clinics and conferences that are conducted quite generally, though even in a small way, at the various posts and hospitals, thus giving evidence of the industry of men who are amply occupied with their manifold duties.

LA SALLE SERVICE CENTER.

IN connection with the recent membership of the La Salle Hotel of Chicago, in the Association of Army and Navy Stores, Inc., Service and ex-Service men will, in visiting Chicago, find an exceptionally cordial welcome awaiting them at this hotel, its vice president and managing director being Colonel Earl L. Thornton, O. R. C.

Being among the first to be commissioned in the Officers' Reserve Corps in 1916, Colonel Thornton entered active service in 1917 at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and was then ordered overseas for duty in France.

In 1918 Colonel Thornton organized and was placed in charge of General Pershing's field headquarters railroad train, remaining on that duty until General Pershing sailed for the United States, Sept. 1, 1919. After his honorable discharge from the Service with the rank of major, Colonel Thornton became an officer in the Reserve Corps and was later promoted to the grade which he now holds.

Among his decorations are as follows: Officer of the Order of the Crown, Belgium; Knight of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus, Italy; and Officer of L'Instruction Publique, France.

Always active in the interests of Service and ex-Service people, Colonel Thornton acted as a genial host to the Army team and all its followers in Chicago during the Army and Navy football game in 1926, and the Hotel La Salle is known as the military hotel of Chicago, and probably has more military organizations meeting there, making the hotel their headquarters, than any other hotel in the world.

The La Salle is the home of the La Salle Post, No. 359, American Legion, and the meeting place and headquarters of the following organizations: American Legion, Association of Illinois; Reserve Officers' Association; Military Intelligence Association; 86th Infantry Division Association; 65th Cavalry Division Association; Sojourners' Club; Heroes of '76; Combat Medal Men's Association; Finance Officer's Association; Quartermaster Association, Chicago Chapter; Military Order of the World War; 2d Division Association, A. E. F., Chicago Chapter; 4th Division Association, A. E. F., and 33d Division Association, A. E. F.

Major General Bullard says, "I consider the Association and its work in every way advantageous and cost saving for Army men"

"I know of the operation of the Association and consider the organization and work in every way advantageous and cost-saving for Army men. I have found it so for myself and highly recommend it to Army men in general."

Urges Pay Act Change

READJUSTMENT of the pay of officers of the Army to equalize the pay between former emergency officers and officers of the former Regular Army now in those grades is sought by Representative Wurzbach in a bill (H. R. 10436), just introduced in Congress. The measure would make such amendments to the current pay act as would entitle former emergency officers in the grades of lieutenant colonel, major and captain to enjoy the benefits of pay periods which they cannot now hope to reach, since they will reach the retirement age of 64 before having the requisite service grade required at present.

may deem necessary: Provided, That nothing contained in this section shall affect the numbers of reserve officers that may be called to active duty for periods of less than six months under existing law."

The terms "active service" and "active duty" present two distinct capacities in which a reserve officer might be on a "pay status;" the first is indicating that full, equal status of an officer in the Regular Army, the second, that of a student only, as indicated in travel allowances, crating and shipping expenses, and other incidental expenses and allowances.

The total appropriation classified as the Organized Reserves, for the fiscal year 1928 is estimated at $4,631,927. Out of this amount is taken large sums for purposes other than training. More than one-third of the remainder, or $1,322,461, is set aside for the benefit of the Army Air Corps, and under the act referred to, the "five-year program" calls for an increase of one-fifth or 20 per cent per annum. It does not require a mathematician to figure that the reserve appropriation would be eaten up in the five-year period. If it is claimed the reserve appropriation will be correspondingly increased, we reply that it has not worked that way. It simply is not done. The alleged total increase in the Budget estimates for the Organized Reserves is wholly out of proportion to the loss sustained through the Air Service allotment.

Gentlemen of the committee, the Air Corps is an entirely separate and distinct entity. There appears no reason for saddling its expense upon the already crippled and limping reserves. The Organized Reserve is an experiment in the national defense plan. It is the chief component, the larger part of our Army in the Nation's extremity. Through it and by the act establishing it appears the first attempt of Congress at a national military policy. The aim is to place the great body of our citizenship (which in the last analysis always fights the Nation's battles) in a position of readiness. We don't want to enter the next war in the scrambled and confused position which the last one, and all others have found us.

40TH DIVISION REUNION NOV. 11.

San Diego (Special).—As a result of repeated suggestions from former members of the 40th Division, Maj. Gen. F. S. Strong, U. S. A., retired, and war-time commander of the 40th, has called a reunion of all members of the famous division for Armistice Day of 1928 at Camp Kearny, San Diego, where the division was mobilized, trained and demobilized after service in France.

General Strong has been receiving many requests from men of the 40th from all sections of the United States for a reunion of the forces which have not been called together since the war. In response to these requests he is issuing a reunion call, and it is meeting with an enthusiastic response. It is estimated that 5,000 men from the Sunshine Division will come to San Diego for the celebration Nov. 10, 11 and 12.

Since Armistice Day falls on Sunday this year, Monday will be celebrated. The reunion will probably open Saturday with a Spanish fiesta in the evening. On Sunday there will be memorial exercises at the old camp site with sports in the afternoon, and on Monday morning there will be a general pow-wow with a parade by units in the afternoon, in conjunction with the Legion and the Naval units stationed at San Diego.

Congressional Notes

HIGHER rank for Army generals in command of Corps Areas and Departments plus the full rank of General for the Chief of Staff as urged by the War Department has been received with doubtful enthusiasm upon Capitol Hill.

Indications are that favorable action will eventually be taken on this proposal with certain modifications; such as rank of General for Chief of Staff and Lt. General for the three Departments with Major Generals for Corps Areas as at present. However it is yet too early to visualize the final attitude of Congress.

Three House bills affecting personnel of the Navy underwent a change of reference during the past week. These bills were originally referred to the House Committee on Naval Affairs but, under the change, are now in the hands of the Committee on Pensions where it is expected action on them will be taken in the near future.

Efforts of Senator Tyson and Representative Fitzgerald to get consideration for their separate, though identical, bills upon Emergency Officers retirement legislation has so far met with considerably more success during this session of the 70th Congress than during the 69th.

Very serious consideration, has been unofficially asked of the War Department by various Senators and Representatives, of the ways and means for the possible establishment of a Regular Army Reserve for enlisted personnel and several Bills have been tentatively introduced providing for retirement of enlisted men after 25 years of service into such a reserve. No report has as yet been made by the War Department although a thorough study of the question has been underway for some time.

Aviation Class beginning March 2, 1928: Comdr. E. W. Tod, Lt. T. H. Robbins, Lt. (j.g.) A. A. Ageton, Ens. M. E. A. Gouin, S. H. Harcourt, D. R. Hull, J. A. McNally, J. W. Steele.

Army pursuit pilots stationed at Selfridge Field, Mt. Clemens, Michigan, are again to have a fling at winter camping. The sojourn of the Army flyers in various localities of northern Michigan will cover a period of nine days, the purpose being to provide a practical test of the mobility of pursuit aviation under severe climate conditions.

The Collier Trophy Committee of the National Aeronautic Association has awarded to Charles L. Lawrence the Collier Trophy for 1927.

Mr. Charles L. Lawrence was the pioneer in the development of the air-cooled engine in America. The original model of the present Wright Whirlwind engine was designed by Mr. Lawrence in 1921. His far-sightedness for the future of aviation in this country and his untiring energy in the development of this engine has brought it to its present state of perfection.

In conformity with a telegram from Mr. L. A. Toombs, Mayor's Reception Committee, New Orleans, La., the Assistant Secretary of War, F. Trubee Davison, has directed the Commanding General, Kelly Field, Texas, to designate three Army Air Corps officers, piloting three airplanes, to represent the War Department in the reception to the trans-Atlantic fliers, Costes and Lebriz, when the latter arrive at the Alvin Callender Field, New Orleans.

The Commanding Officer of the U. S. S. Los Angeles, Commander C. E. Rosendahl, U. S. N., reported to the Navy Department Jan. 27 that the Los Angeles had landed on the Saratoga. He said:

At 2:30 p. m. the Saratoga, then at sea about 30 miles south of Newport, R. I., headed into the wind at a moderate rate of speed. As planned the Los Angeles made no practice approach from leeward to one side of the Saratoga at an altitude of about

Radio Notes

SECRETARY OF STATE FRANK B. KELLOGG opened the first Trans-Atlantic Radio-Telephone communication system between the United States and Holland this week when he talked with the Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs, F. Belaerts van Blekland. Radio-telephone has been in use for some time, commercially, between New York and London but Mr. Kellogg's conversation was the first two-way communication by this means with continental Europe.

In an experiment, which proved highly satisfactory, nine Army Air Corps Observation planes were put through maneuvers over Mitchel Field, Long Island, under orders transmitted from the ground via radio-telephone.

225 feet. The Los Angeles then circled and made the approach from the landing.

At this time the Saratoga's speed was about 15 knots into the wind. The wind was light but very gusty, thereby lending difficulty to the operation. On reaching a point over the Saratoga's deck a gust carried the Los Angeles from 60 feet to 225 feet but she was maneuvered down again quickly. Manila trail ropes were dropped to the Saratoga's deck and the men manning these lines pulled the Los Angeles down to the deck. With existing winds the problem of holding the Los Angeles on deck was somewhat difficult. A hose was led to the Los Angeles and fuel, water, supplies and all passengers were transferred from one ship to the other. The entire operations, including the practice approach, consumed about one hour in spite of the fact that this was the first attempt of a large rigid airship to land on the deck of a ship and although hasty arrangements and only crude equipment were available on this initial attempt. This operation was considered to have proved the feasibility of landing an airship on the deck of a flagship.

Five Curtiss O1-B Falcon observation planes, which type is now standard for the Air Corps, have recently been assigned to the 5th Observation Squadron. These planes were ferried from the Curtiss airplane factory, Buffalo, New York, by pilots of the organization. Installation of SCR 134 radio sets has commenced on these ships and they will also be equipped with Browning and Lewis machine guns and bomb racks.

Organized Reserve MISSOURI RESERVE.

Kansas City (Special).—Gen. John J. Pershing was guest of honor at the Kansas City Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association dinner during his recent visit. The function had the cooperation of all the ex-service men's organizations in the city. More than 500 attended, including twenty officers, faculty and students, from the Command and General Staff School, Fort Leavenworth.

Previous to the dinner, Gen. Pershing had visited the new building of the Reserve Officers' Association, immediately adjoining and connected with the armory of the 110th Engineers, National Guard of Missouri. His inspection of the city's "military center" led him to comment on it at the dinner.

Kansas City, he said, presented the first example to come to his attention of a perfect working out of the ideals of the National Defense Act. Here he found Regular Army, National Guard and Reserves co-operating in a splendid manner to further the plan of training a civilian Army through the use of a small but efficient regular force.

Continuing, Gen. Pershing said he would cite the Kansas City plan and urge its adoption wherever his travels took him over the country. He commended the policy of Maj. Gen. Harry A. Smith, who had preceded him as a speaker, in putting into effect a similar idea in all the populous centers of the Seventh Corps Area.

Gen. Pershing inspected the reserve building on the eve of the opening of a season of pistol matches. An inter-city league has been organized under the sponsorship of the reserve officers.

The Kansas City chapter also conducts an inter-branch pistol league, with teams from the Infantry, Field Artillery, Cavalry, Medical Corps and Air Corps entered. The membership of the chapter is more than 300 and the average attendance at weekly lectures or conferences conducted by officers from the Fort Leavenworth school and the unit executives is nearly 250. Lectures on tactics, conferences on map problems and tactical walks have been provided in the annual course of instruction through the co-operation of the Command and General Staff School under Generals Ely, Smith and King.

MEDICAL RESERVE.

New York (Special).—The officer personnel of Hospital Center No. 6, Col. DeVries, will meet in the Assembly Room, Army Building, 39 Whitehall St., New York City, at 8:15 o'clock on the evening of March 23. The Corps Area Surgeon, Col. A. E. Truby, M. C. and his assistant, Major R. G. DeVoe, M. C. will be the speakers of the evening and will greet each member personally. Capt. K. H. Metz, Dent-Res, the Adjutant, announces.

SAN FRANCISCO RESERVE

San Francisco (Special).—The January meeting was a banquet in honor of Captain W. W. Breite, who has served as Secretary of the Chapter since its organization four years ago, and who was State President of the Reserve Officers' Association, Department of California in 1926.

At its December meeting, San Francisco Chapter, Reserve Officers' Association re-elected Major Harry E. Speas, Qm. Res., as President. To assist Major Speas during 1928 the following officers were elected: Vice President, 1st Lt. Lester A. Olsen, Qm. Res.; Secretary and Treasurer, Capt. W. W. Breite, C. A. Res.; Councilmen, Lt. ### Letters to Editor DISCUSSES JUNIORS' PAY.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal:

IN line with the agitation for financial assistance for second lieutenants and White House Aides, I have wondered why no one has considered a sensible revision of the present rental allowance for junior officers.

How anyone, giving the matter thought, can assume that the $40.00 and $60.00 rental, allowed bachelor and married lieutenants, will replace an assignment of quarters, including heat, light, cooking facilities, not to mention a telephone et al., is beyond my comprehension. As a matter of fact, the situation now stands that a lieutenant upon being ordered to duty with R. O. T. C., O. R. C., or National Guard is confronted with an automatic deduction from his rather skimpy budget, the size of the deduction varying according to the locality of the station, but which in all cases surely exists. I can casually figure mine to about forty dollars.

In as much as lieutenants have always been, and in all likelihood always will be, ordered on the duties mentioned, it is hoped that one of the Congressmen, who reads your admirable Journal, will give this question some thought and perhaps, investigation and action. If the hoped for reader considers whether it is a fair break to be practically sentenced to a substantial red ink entry every month for four years upon receiving orders to report for duty in town, I am extremely hopeful for results.

This suggestion can not possibly be acted upon in time to do me any good, but if some other lieutenant does not have to watch the old check book like I do, the Army will be better off.

URGES INCREASE FOR D. E. M. L.

Editor, Army and Navy Journal.

QUITE a commotion was raised prior to increasing the Army ration to its present status, one of the main things to happen, and seemingly the most unjust was, that no increase was given to the D. E. M. L. on a commutation status. They still continue to draw $1.20 per day. It will be remembered that the original method (under the act of June, 1920) of fixing the commutation status of the D. E. M. L. was four times the value of the garrison ration which at that time was 4x30—$1.20. This D. E. M. L. allowance has been at this figure since June, 1922, yet when the Army as a whole received such a substantial increase it did not benefit the D. E. M. L. one iota.

We are told that living costs have mounted rapidly since 1922; why should not the D. E. M. L. benefit when we know that the increase applies to the Army of the United States. (Probably we are not in that Army?).

Two years ago San Francisco introduced a new and practical idea by starting a Post Exchange, which is incorporated under the laws of the State of California, as a non-profit cooperative corporation. It is operated primarily for and by members of the San Francisco Chapter, although any member of any Chapter in the United States is eligible to utilize and become a member of this Post Exchange. Provisions in the Articles of Incorporation and By-laws provide that complimentary membership may be issued to officers in the regular establishment of the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps.

The San Francisco Chapter has adopted as its slogan for 1928, "Every Reserve Officer in the Bay District a Member," and will receive applications for membership at the Secretary's office, 601 Clunie Building, San Francisco.

OBITUARIES

Announcement of deaths should be addressed to Editorial Office Army and Navy Journal, Architects Building, Washington, D. C.

CAPT. FRANK O. MAXSON, C. E. C., U. S. N., retired, who died of pneumonia on Jan. 21 at his home in Coupeville, Wash., was born in Stillmanville, Conn., Aug. 8, 1851. His early childhood was spent in California, where his father was a mining superintendent, but after the death of his mother in 1862, he lived in Norwich, Conn., until he entered the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University.

After graduation and a year of post-graduate study at Yale he began his long service to the Government as a topographer in one of the parties of the Wheeler Survey, sent to map the States of New Mexico, Colorado and Arizona. His party also surveyed the now famous Yosemite Valley of California, and one of the earliest authentic maps of this region was made from the data compiled by him.

He entered the Navy as a civil engineer in 1881, and during his years of active duty served in nearly every Navy yard in the United States, as well as in the Philippine Islands. He was retired in 1913, at the age of 62, but was recalled to active duty for charge of building operations in the Seventh Naval District, with headquarters at Key West.

In 1922 he and his wife, who is the daughter of the late Rev. William T. Van Doren, of Washington, D. C., moved to Coupeville, Wash., in order to be near their children, Dr. Frank T. Maxson and Dr. Louis H. Maxson, of Seattle, and Miss Evelyn J. Maxson, of Coupeville. Captain and Mrs. Maxson recently celebrated their golden wedding with an unbroken family circle present; two sons and their wives, a daughter, and seven grandchildren.

A correspondent writes: "In every place where Captain Maxson was stationed his work was characterized by painstaking care and sound construction. As a consistent Christian he made his influence felt for good in every community, and his loss will be felt by a host of friends, both in and out of the Service."

Master Sergt. David R. Myers, 26th Infantry, U. S. A., retired, died on Jan. 13, 1928, at Columbus, Ohio, after an illness of three days. He was 48 years old and was retired on Nov. 3, 1925.

He served in the Spanish American War, in Cuba, in the Philippines, on the Mexican border and in the World War as a member of the First Division, serving as 1st Sgt. Co. D, 3rd Machine Gun Battalion and was wounded during the Aisne-Marne offensive. He was buried at Greenlawn Cemetery, Columbus, Ohio, with a military funeral and firing squad from Ft. Hayes. Since his retirement Sergeant Meyers had resided with his niece, Mrs. A. E. Liles, 238 Dakota Avenue, that city.

The death of Field Marshal Earl Haig, Commander-in-Chief of the British Armies during the World War, came as a shock to the Army, and occasioned messages of regret and condolence to be sent to London. The Secretary of War, Dwight F. Davis, sent an expression of regret to the Secretary of State for War, London, while Gen. John J. Pershing issued a statement regarding the death of Field Marshal Haig.

Mrs. Emily Judson (Beckwith) Cole, wife of Gen. George M. Cole, Adjutant General, Connecticut N. G., died at her home, 220 South Beacon St., Hartford, Conn., Jan. 27, 1928. She was born in New London, Conn., June 9, 1855. She leaves besides her husband, two daughters, Miss Clara B. M. Cole and Miss Emily B. Cole; two sons, Col. George E. Cole of Hartford and Capt. Donald M. Cole, U. S. A., stationed in Wisconsin; and a brother, Mortimer H. Beckwith of New London. Interment was in Cedar Grove Cemetery, New London, Conn.

The Cuban Congress has voted Mrs. Leonard Wood, widow of Maj. Gen. Wood, a pension of $500 monthly.

The United States Government allows Mrs. Wood a pension of $30 monthly.

Pension Bills Pushed

THE Gillett Bill, providing for a pension of $5,000 per year to the widow of Major General Leonard Wood is still pending on the Senate Calendar. Senator Gillett proposes to bring it up for action at the earliest opportunity and it is believed that little or no opposition will be encountered.

A similar bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Robert L. Bacon, of New York, and referred to the Committee on Pensions where it is expected to be favorably reported within the next few days. At the present time it is not known just what attitude the House will take toward this contemplated legislation but indications point to favorable action when actually brought to a vote.

It is understood that the Bureau of the Budget has not found such action in financial conflict with the program of the President.

Interesting Service Women

Miss Louise Larned

MISS LOUISE LARNED is another Service woman who is making for herself a niche in the "Hall of Fame." Inheriting her tendency toward art from her father, the late Col. Charles W. Larned, who was Professor of Drawing at the Military Academy for 36 years, Miss Larned received her first instruction from him. Behind her she has a long list of Army ancestors, among them being her grandfather, Gen. Edmund B. Alexander. Other Service relations are her uncle, the late Gen. G. Norman Lieber, and her brothers, Maj. P. A. Larned, ret., and Maj. W. E. Larned, Ord. Department.

Awarded Prize at Panama Institute National.

Miss Larned began her career by drawing for her school papers and for her own pleasure, but soon decided to study in earnest. While visiting Maj. W. E. Larned in Panama, she studied at the Institute National in Panama City and won first prize at that institution for her portrait of a Martinique woman. Portraiture early became her main ambition.

She returned to the United States and studied illustration at the School of Illustration, Leonia, N. J., under Chapman and Harvey Dunn, two well-known illustrators. Her experience there allowed her to produce a more finished product and she had cover designs accepted by St. Nicholas Magazine. Moving to New York City she continued her studies at the Art Students' League and began to acquire technique in her portraits. Carroll Beckwith, the well-known New York portrait painter, became interested in her work and got her into Foggarty's class of instruction.

Served Four Years in Yeoman Corps (F).

During this period the war broke out and she immediately enlisted in the Camouflage Corps then organized in New York. This did not offer her sufficient activity and with the urge of her ancestors behind her she enlisted in the Navy Yeoman Corps (F) in Washington and was assigned to duty in the Engineering Department of the Navy. Here her work was of a special nature. Many new designs of ships were being made and it was her duty to interpret the dull blueprint into a living vessel on the high seas. Six large paintings of as many types of vessels still hanging on the walls of the Navy Department testify to her work done the four years of her enlistment as a member of the Yeoman Corps. During her service she rose from the ranks to the position of Chief Petty Officer.

Realization of Ambition After the War.

The end of the war found her in Princeton, N. J., hard at work on her delayed ambition for portraiture. While there she painted many Princetonians, among them being Lenox Scott, grandson of Gen. H. L. Scott, and the two Stockton girls. Visiting in Watervliet Arsenal, she painted a prominent society girl of Troy, N. Y., and later, in Schenectady, painted several portraits there.

Her art called her back to New York for further study and here she painted a portrait of Lt. Guy Envin, a blind French officer, philosopher and lecturer, who appealed strongly to her artistic talents. This portrait was later shown at an exhibition in Princeton and was very favorably commented upon.

She has taken a studio in the Pen and Brush Club, 16 East 10th Street, New York, and is continuing her work there. A visit to a friend at Sewickly, near Pittsburgh, Pa., resulted in an avalanche of pastel portraits, for she was introduced at a tea and from morning to night her models appeared in a steady stream. She finished about 25 of these heads in less than two weeks.

Exhibit Portrait Favorably Received.

At the Spring Salon of the Anderson Galleries in New York, she exhibited a portrait which received very favorable press criticisms from professional critics present at the exhibition. She has recently illustrated a West Point story for St. Nicholas, and has had cover designs accepted. She is continuing her portraiture in addition to her illustrating. She has marked ability in this line and has received many compliments on her ability to obtain likenesses. She welcomes Service people at her studio and gives special attention to Service work. She has very recently received the benefit of criticism of her work by Henri, the well-known portrait painter.

Miss Larned is concentrating on her portraiture but is also interested in her commercial work and has great aptitude in caricature.

We are of the opinion that the day is not far distant when this talented daughter of the Army will be heralded as one of the most famous portraiture artists of her time.

Weddings

CENTERING the interest of hosts of friends in Army and civilian circles was the marriage of Miss Virginia Hayes, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Daniel J. Hayes, U. S. A., of Baltimore, Md., and Lt. Rothwell Hutton Brown, of Fort Benning, Ga., which took place at the Protestant Chapel at Fort Benning at 7 o'clock Monday evening, Jan. 30, 1928. Chaplain J. R. Wright performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Just preceding the ceremony Captain Rutledge sang "O Promise Me" and "At Dawning," and was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Rutledge.

The groomsmen were Lts. M. R. Kammerer, J. R. Jeter, J. H. Gilbreth, D. G. Strickler, W. B. Griffith, Jr., D. D. Hedekin, W. W. Cornog, Jr., T. B. Gailbreath, and R. P. Reeder, jr. Miss Margaret Casaday of Fort McPherson, Ga., the daughter of Col. and Mrs. G. H. Casaday, who was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant, wore a gown of pale blue tulle over a foundation of rainbow satin, with a picture hat of the same material. Completing her costume was a bouquet of pink rose buds.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother Capt. William Maine Hutton, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Capt. J. M. Huddleston. The bride's charm was enhanced by her gown of ivory satin, trimmed with princess lace made bouffant style. The beautiful veil of rose point lace, an heirloom in the family, was held to her head with orange blossoms. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

As the ceremony was concluded and the orchestra pealed forth with Mendelssohn's wedding chorus, the groomsmen formed an arch with crossed sabers through which the bride and groom left the church. Immediately following the ceremony, the wedding party motored to the Log Cabin, where a wedding supper was served.

Later in the evening the bride changed her costume for a smart suit of blue satin made ensemble, with which she wore hat and accessories to match, and Lt. and Mrs. Brown left for a two weeks' motor trip to points of interest in Florida.

The bride and her mother have spent this winter at Fort Benning with her brother, Captain Hutton. She received her college education at the University of Colorado, where she was a member of the Kappa Alpha Theta fraternity.

Lt. Brown is the son of Mr. George Rothwell Brown, noted columnist of the Washington Post. He was educated at Georgetown University, Washington, where he graduated with the class of 1926 and has made many friends in Army circles.

FINANCIAL DIGEST

By a Market Expert.

DISCUSSING the credit situation in its recent review of the stock market, E. A. Pierce and Co. states:

No one appears to believe that new mysterious factors have been thrust into the credit situation to alter previously conceived ideas of a plentiful supply of funds during 1928. There was, however, a certain psychology in the speculative situation appearing to affect the whole country, developing an attitude of mind in which it seemed as if the attention of the nation was being concentrated upon security markets and giving the impression that general business was standing still to participate in or to watch demonstrations in common stocks.
Investment education has progressed far since the days of the Liberty Loans and stock values are somewhat better understood, but in markets like those of the past few weeks, lessons of conservatism are likely to be quickly forgotten and supplanted by a feverish desire for quick and fortuitous profits. We think there may have been in the making a speculative condition which might have led to a serious crash in values and we further believe that conservative bankers are of the opinion that the recent steps taken by the Federal Reserve authorities are designed to prevent that, if possible. There is absolutely no thought of calamity in the air, no belief that business is not going to pull itself out of the rut into which it had fallen in the second half of last year and, furthermore, the presidential year fallacy is, perhaps, more widely realized and accepted than ever before. We do not expect a corrective decline to be lasting but expect, after correction of apparent speculative excesses, to witness a renewal of buying activities in selected stocks in much the same way as for the past year or more.

LOAN PLANS ANNOUNCED.

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Federal Services Finance Corporation, the officers of the company were instructed to make arrangements for offering an issue of five year 6 per cent gold debentures in denominations of $300 and $1,000, ready for delivery about March 1, to be offered to the military-naval services on such monthly payment plans as will enable them to make purchases out of their monthly savings. The proceeds from the sale of these debentures will be used in their business of making loans to officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, and in financing the purchase of automobiles and other commodities bought on the deferred payment plan.

This company has been in operation about four years, during which time it has loaned more than $2,000,000 to the officers of the services and has charged off their books as losses only about $1,200. They have just closed a very satisfactory year's business during which they made total contracts of $1,315,895.67 from which there was derived a gross revenue of $119,003, which, after deducting expenses, paying interest, and making liberal provisions for reserves, left a net profit of $46,696.71. The usual dividend of 7 per cent on the preferred and $2 per share on the common stock was paid, leaving a very substantial balance to be passed to the undivided profits.

URGE CHAPLAINS' LEGISLATION.

Legislation affecting the Chaplains' Corps of the Army was endorsed by the General Committee on Army and Navy Chaplain at its recent meeting in Washington, D. C. The purpose of this legislation is to remove existing discriminations and place Chaplains on a parity with the members of the other non-combatant corps of the Army.

Chaplain C. S. Macfarland, Res., General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, conferred with the committee on this question, and upon his suggestion the chairmen of the Senate and House Military Affairs Committees have been requested, in the event of a hearing on these bills, to allow the General Committee the privilege of representation.

Jones Bill in House

THE Jones Bill to expand the Merchant Marine and to maintain it under Government control which is now pending in the House passed the Senate Jan.
31 by a vote of 53-31. The measure includes a clause requiring the unanimous consent of the Shipping Board for the sale of ships. It allows the Board to ask for funds to go through with a 15-year $250,000,000 construction program, Senator Jones said.

NAVY RELIEF SOCIETY ELECTS.

The Navy Relief Society at its annual meeting on Feb. 2 elected six members of the board of managers—one, Capt.
W. R. Van Auker for a year, and five for a period of three years. The latter include Rear Adm. R. S. Griffin, U. S.
N. (retired); Capt. C. H. Dickens, C. H.
C., U. S. N.; Mrs. E. S. Land, Capt.
Chester Wells, U. S. N. (retired), and Capt. Frederick G. Pyne, S. C., U. S. N.

The society announced that during the past year the organization had extended aid in 137 new cases and at the end of the year, it was paying monthly allotments to 74 widows, 40 mothers, 3 daughters and 2 sisters, a total of 120 beneficiaries. It also announced that it had not been necessary to call for public aid for the dependents of the S-4 disaster victims as the society had been able to help all those who needed material assistance.

Do You Guess? Or Do You Know?

If you can answer these questions about railroads, you know some of the important facts by which the value of RAILROAD
BONDS as investments
must be judged:

1. How many ties are replaced annually by each of the 149 Class A Railroads?
2. What were the actual earnings of the specific lines of track covered by each of the 1,162 outstanding Railroad Bonds?
3. What per cent of freight cars on each railroad were repaired last year?

Each answer is important!

for procuring a reasonable number of these devices or of the best available substitute as soon as their acceptability has been determined, and if that should occur during the ensuing fiscal year would willingly entertain a supplemental estimate of appropriation. The estimate was made up before the officer's death, and that unfortunate occurrence places the matter in an entirely different light.

The reduction referred to of $204,000 has been partly offset by the inclusion of $34,060 for completely rehabilitating the cable controlling the submarine mine defenses at Panama. The cable heretofore used is expensive to buy and to maintain. Master Sergt. Paul R. Nelson, a product of the Coast Artillery School, has developed a satisfactory substitute which will cost $201,350 to rehabilitate the entire system in the United States, Panama, and Hawaii, as against $700,000 for the cable now in use. The maintenance cost would be $70,000, as against $160,000 at present, amounting in both instances an adequate maintenance allowance. It would be economy to rehabilitate the systems in the United States and Hawaii at the earliest date practicable.

National Guard. The Budget estimates for the National Guard, including the Military Bureau in the War Department, amount to $31,853,256. The sum is $1,923,299 in excess of the appropriations provided for the current fiscal year.

The estimates and the bill are on the basis of a total National Guard strength of 188,000, and contemplate 48 drills per year. The strength on Sept. 30, 1927, was 186,862, at which time, through overrecruiting, it exceeded the strength prescribed by the Secretary of War by 602. The estimates and the bill make provision for 1,740 men in 1929 in excess of the present strength as fixed by the Secretary of War. The ultimate aim of the National Guard at this time is to build a strength of 210,500. The increase in this bill is looking to the attainment of that goal. Particular attention is directed to this fact because it is going to result in one of two things, namely: Either the cost of the Military Establishment is going to mount up or the development of the guard will be at the expense of the Regular Army.

Organized Reserves.

For this component the estimates which the committee considered totaled $4,631,927. The accompanying bill provides a total of $4,784,171. This sum exceeds the aggregate of 1928 appropriations by $589,530, and the Budget estimates by $116,244.

The estimates are on the basis of providing 15-day camp training for 15,125 off-cers—1,257 less than provided for in 1928, and of providing training in excess of 15 days for 600 officers—27 less than in 1928. The saving thus effected ($218,632) is used partly to offset the additional expense in 1929 of reserve aviation, for which the estimate provides $957,201, as against $416,000 for the current fiscal year. Included in the figure of $957,201, is $208,451 representing for the most part a depreciation charge on planes used in training reserve pilots, an expense previously borne by the Army Air Corps appropriation. The remainder of the increase on account of reserve aviation is because of the advance in the operating cost per flying hour to be charged by the Air Corps in 1929. Another increase (approximately $50,000) over 1928 is in the item of ammunition, occasioned by depletion of reserve stocks.

The question as to the number of officers for whom 15-day training should be provided is not easy to solve because some of the factors are too conjectural. We have been proceeding heretofore on giving 15-day training every third year. If this were rigidly adhered to, eliminating reserve officers serving also with the National Guard, officers affiliated with the procurement or supply branches, and officers whose engagements or inclinations prevent or discount consideration, the Budget figure of 15,125 might not be far out of the way. The War Department is planning now to get a better hold of the situation so as to reduce or eliminate the conjectural factors in shaping the 1930 estimates. The committee is proposing to increase the estimate for pay and allowances for 15-day training by $116,244. This may or may not be adequate, without increasing other reserve appropriations, to provide 15-day training for 16,000 officers. Until some of the uncertainties are removed the committee is not disposed to recommend any more. In no other respects have the estimates been disturbed.

Reserve Officers' Training Corps. For providing military training for students at schools and colleges throughout the country the Budget estimate is $2,970,000, or $324,086 in excess of the current appropriation. The committee is proposing $2,953,500, or $16,500 less than proposed in the Budget. The actual difference between the current appropriation and the amount proposed by the committee is around $30,000, for the reason that the current appropriation was augmented by an unused sum of $1,038,291 carried forward from 1927, while it is estimated that there will be $700,000 carried forward from 1928 to 1929.

Civilian Military Training Camps. The estimate under this head is $2,561,240, or $240,000 less than the current appropriation. The committee is proposing the current appropriation, or $2,801,240.

The Budget estimate, assuming there will be no money available for transfer from 1928 to 1929, will provide for 30,000 trainees. The sum the committee is proposing should certainly take care of 33,000 plus and possibly for the same number it was intended should be given training this year, if, by any chance, there should be a balance to carry forward.

Promotion of Rifle Practice. The estimates presented this year call for a total expenditure under this head of $214,375. This sum is $145,465 less than was appropriated for the fiscal year 1928. The accompanying bill is in complete agreement with the Budget estimate.

The reduction in this item is wholly due to the fact that no provision is made in this bill for holding the national rifle matches during the fiscal year 1929, commencing July 1, next. The policy of holding such matches biennially was inaugurated in the fiscal year 1927. For the current fiscal year, ending June 30, next, money was provided for holding this competition. A bill has just recently passed the House (H. R. 8550) providing that these matches shall be held annually. There are some who contend that the law now, inferentially at least, requires the competitions to be conducted annually. Whether that be true or not, of course, it is not incumbent upon the Congress to appropriate.

The committee is advised that it would require additions to this bill aggregating $561,371 to provide for the national matches being held during the fiscal year 1929. The increase would not fall under this head alone, but would extend to a number of the Regular Army appropriations. The committee heard no one from the War Department, from the Secretary down, advocating the annual conduct of the national matches. The money freed the off year is available for maneuvers and other forms of training for the Regular Army.

Quality put it there—quality keeps it there. Camel smokers are not concerned and need not be concerned with anything but the pleasure of smoking.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.
